SIX DEAD IN MINE BLAST

Today

Immortality 50-50.
What Is Marriage?
A Mechanical Army.
Bring Money.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—
(Copyright, 1928.)

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Feb 21.

EDISON says his belief in immortality is a "fifty-fifty proposition." He half believes, half disbelieves. If he should find himself living and conscious, in eternity, Edison would ask permission to spend his time experimenting.

The trouble is that in heaven, where nothing is needed, no sickness to cure, no houses to light, no batteries to build, experimenting could not be made useful. That would spoil it for Edison.

CONAN DOYLE says he can prove that Edison is wrong and that immortality is the only possibility.

Conan Doyle's son, it seems, went to a medium and talked to a young friend, killed in a motor accident. The dead friend called young Doyle by his nickname, mentioned the nicknames of mutual friends.

IN OTHER words, the "spirit" did several things that the medium might easily have done, but nothing that the medium could not have done.

Young Doyle should have asked the well educated spirit to quote the first lines of Iliad. He would have got no answer.

ALL the talk about trial marriage and companionate marriage makes one clergyman fear that marriage may become a lottery. Adam thought it was that, when he bit into that apple, and when one of his two boys killed the other.

MARRIAGE is neither a lottery nor a safe bond issue. Schopenhauer says it is woman's conspiracy to make every man support some one woman, as long as she lives. Which is pessimistic nonsense.

MARRIAGE is a training school for men, and it will outlast all the foolish talk and suggestion for improvement.

Men ultimately will settle down

VIRGINIA DARE

After a "fruitless" search of the city for her favorite brand of wine, Virginia Dare, 17, late of Tampa, Fla., was forced to drink ordinary moonshine, she told Magistrate A. D. Brandon today in Morals Court, where she was arraigned on a charge of drinking well, but not wisely. She was discharged.

6 MORE BURIED IN PIT

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 21.—The known death toll as a result of a double accident in the Kinloch mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company and the mine of the Valley Brick Company, miles away, this afternoon mounted to six, with six other miners missing. Nine were rescued or escaped.

Four bodies were found in the main workings of Kinloch mine, where the mysterious blast trapped 11 men last night. Two more dead were taken from the brick company's mine, which five men, ignorant of the explosion, entered this morning. Three of the five, rendered unconscious by fumes, were brought to the surface by a mine mule, which pulled out the car on which the victims were lying. The animal died as it reached fresh air.

SUES CITY FOR $15,000 FOR LAND DEPRECIATION

Frank C. Murdock, Homewood avenue and Kelly street, has entered suit against the City of Pittsburgh in Common Pleas Court asking $15,000 damages. He alleges that the city took a part of his land at Homewood avenue and Kelly streets to erect a public comfort station, which depreciated the value of the rest of his property.

Dope Addicts In Slavery

This is the second of a series of articles by Winfield Black, exposing conditions resulting from wholesale, uncurbed sale of "dope" in the United States.

These articles are being printed in connection with Narcotic Education Week.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THE STORY OF THE LIVING DEAD—What about the next chapter, are you ready to go into that?

What is a "dope fiend"? What is a "hop head"? What is a "narcotic addict"? What is an "opium slave"?

How do they differ, one from the other?

They are one and the same thing, under different names. A narcotic addict is a poor, pitiful, suffering, aching, shivering, freezing, burning slave to the cruelest master the world has ever dreamed of permitting to exist.

And the name of this master is "Dope."

WINIFRED BLACK

There are five separate and distinct varieties of "dope"—each one worse and harder to fight than the other.

Three of them are brothers in the same horrible family—opium.

Opium itself is made from the opium poppy. This poppy grows in India and in Turkey and in the Straits settlement.

HOTELS GO AT $17,000,000

Official announcement was to be made today of the sale of the Pittsburgh Hotels Company—consisting of the William Penn and Ft. Pitt hotels and Ft. Pitt Laundry Company—to Eugene C. Eppley, who operates a chain of hotels in the West.

The price was reported to be about $17,000,000.

ADDED TO CHAIN

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 21.—Eugene C. Eppley, of Omaha, who has been negotiating for the William Penn and the Fort Pitt Hotels in Pittsburgh, is one of the biggest individual hotel owners in the United States—and he is only 43. His first hotel job was as a handy ma.

Eppley's Los Angeles hotel, the Alexandria, is valued at about $6,000,000; his Fontenelle hotel in Omaha about $2,000,000. One of his Lincoln (Neb.) hotels cost $1,000,000 a year or two ago. And he has three hotels in Lincoln and three in Omaha. His Chieftain hotel in Council Bluffs, Ia., is a $500,000 affair. He has two or three hotels in Sioux City, the same number in Sioux Falls, two in Cedar Rapids, Ia., and hotels in other cities of the west.

Eppley's first experience in hotel work was at the McKinley Hotel in Canton, O., where he shifted furniture. When he first asked for the job he was told to come back later.

Every day for a week Eppley came back looking for a job. "I'm going to be a hotel man, and I might as well start at the bottom," Eppley said.

One day he was told there was a job "piling" furniture. "But that's too heavy for you," said the manager. ager.

"If it's too heavy, then fire me," replied Eppley.

He got the job.

Three months later he was steward. A few months more and he was manager. Then he became a hotel manager at Lima, Ohio.

Then he came west and for some time was manager of the West Hotel at Minneapolis. After that, he bought a hotel of his own and started out for himself.

He has added hotel after hotel to his chain, but his first success on a big scale was when he bought the Fontenelle Hotel at Omaha.

If Robert Didn't Believe in Signs He Does Now

Robert Turner, 39, a Negro, of 1312 Bedford avenue, stopped his pushcart this afternoon as Patrolman "Happy" McCready gave the "stop" signal at Water street and Penn avenue. But he did not continue at the "go" sign. The officer says he recognized the cart as one belonging to the city, stolen last Tuesday, and Turner was arrested.

CHIEF LENGEL FREED IN EDITOR'S MURDER

LISBON, O., Feb. 21.—Without putting a witness on the stand in his own defense, S. A. Lengel, former police chief of Canton, O., today was ordered acquitted by Judge W. F. Lones, presiding at Lengel's retrial of a first degree murder charge in the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton newspaper editor and vice foe.

The court held there was "insufficient evidence to connect Lengel with the murder of Mellett" and that the state had introduced no evidence to show that the former police head had been in any way involved in a conspiracy to murder Mellett, who was shot down at the door of his garage July 16, 1926.

The case against Lengel collapsed when Floyd E. Streitenberger, lifer at Ohio State Penitentiary for his part in the Mellett murder, placed on the stand by the prosecution, refused to testify. His testimony in the first Lengel trial had been instrumental in convicting the police chief and he had been relied upon as the state's trump card.

DRUG ADDICT IS SLAVE TO WORLD'S CRUELEST MASTER

MARATHON DANCERS -:- GOING STRONG AFTER -:- ALL-NIGHT SESSION

SIX COUPLES QUIT

Two p. m. today found 23 of the 29 couples, who, at midnight, started the marathon dance being held in Danceland, Fifth avenue, going strong. A phonograph in one corner of the hall grinds out a ceaseless melody. Tonight an orchestra will take up the refrains.

DOPE USER IN CRUEL SLAVERY

bloom is one of the most beautiful sights in the world—purple, scarlet, rose colored, snow white, faint violet—it is like a lovely dream to see the poppies nodding in the spring winds.

The harvest from those fields—ah! that is a different affair.

Disgrace, humiliation, shame, hatred, robbery, murder, cruelty beyond belief, treachery beyond imagination—that's the crop that springs from the poppy fields.

Dope Is Supreme

Home, friends, family, the love of little children, the light-hearted laughter of youth, the simple faith of age—what do these things count when weighed in the balance with one ounce of the juice of those flowers that are so beautiful—and so deadly.

Opium—that's where it all began—the drugging of the human race.

It commenced in the Orient—the drugging business. The Turks knew opium generations ago. So did the East Indians. The Arabs gave opium to their horses to make them brave when they went into battle. The Chinese learned to know opium so well that a whole intelligent and noble nation had to rise and fight almost to the death—just to throw off the spell of the poison that was fast making them a race of slaves.

Expensive Luxury

Opium itself is now the least-used of the deadly narcotics.

It takes time and space and money to smoke opium.

You have to have an elaborate layout, an opium pipe, an opium table, an opium lamp and a place where you can smoke undisturbed. The smell of an opium pipe tells horrible stories to an inquisitive world, and you must know your underworld and know it well, to find the right place to smoke. Then you must give time to it. Plenty of time.

Leisure, lassitude, a forgetting of the world and everything in it. All these things must be yours or you cannot be a devotee of the black smoke and when you are a devotee, what do you get out of it?

A little forgetting—a little dulling of the sharp pain of living—that's all.

The ancient tales of dear delights and soft sensuous pleasures are all—tales—and no more.

Any opium smoker will tell you he began to smoke just for the experience, and what he is apt to call the "kick." Or to forget his dolors.

Delight—and Death

He keeps on smoking because he will die in hideous torture if he were ever to stop.

The "black smoke" does not give pleasure after the first few times of smoking. It simply stops unendurable pain—the pain the "Black Smoke" makes itself, as soon as you dare to try to stop smoking it.

But what of it? What do you care?

What are the foolish things worth that men strive for anyhow? Friends, a good appetite, good health, a good job, a good reputation, respect of the community in which you live, money, travel, books, the theater, dancing, laughter, love—what are these but dreams and a part of dreams when once the black candle is lit in your bedimmed brain.

Let fools talk of life and living. What you want is death—sweet dreamless death—and if you smoke often enough and long enough, you will have your wish—at the altar of the "black candle."

Lure Is Strong

At first your friends will wonder. You have your little smoke just for fun. You'll try anything once, you'll say. And then the first thing you know, you'll find yourself back again in the "Black Smoke" country.

It is all so quaint—the dim lights, the quiet, the strange forgetting and all at once you find you cannot live without the "black smoke."

Daylight is a torture. Artificial light is a misery. The friendly jokes of old friends jar upon you. What you want is the dark. What you want is quiet. The shuffling step of the one who cooks your opium pill. Yes, even the dirt and the rags of the dingy couch on which he bids you lie.

In the Depths

The acrid smell of the cooking pill before you put it in your pipe—the sickish sweet of the "black smoke"—the lull—the forgetting.

And afterwards, the sick stomach, the bursting head, the frightful pains all over your body. You will never smoke again—never! But on the second day you are back again in the dark and the dirt and the rags, with a black man on one side of you, stretched on the same couch, and the yellow man too, and perhaps a poor degraded creature that once had fair hair and a sweet smile, and was the pride and hope of some simple home.

Degradation, filth, disgrace, shame—what are these things but words—once you have grown to know the fitful guttering of the black candle in your diseased brain.

Your work suffers. You are moody, gruff, distraught, half asleep, with a furtive glitter in your eyes. One by one your friends leave you. You lose your job. Well, what of it?

Even Love Flees

You only need a few dollars to light the black candle and keep it lit.

Wife—she's gone broken-hearted. Children — where are they? Who knows? Who cares? There's no love in the world of the black candle.

Ambition—a phrase for idiots to mumble. Pride—nothing but a joke. Flicker—flicker—it's all over for you, but the black candle. When your money is gone, and you can't beg any more, you steal, and then you rob, and then if you must, you murder, for the black candle must be kept burning at all odds.

Slaves—the poor fellows who rowed the galleys back in ancient days—were free men compared with the slaves of the black candle.

A New "Master"

Too much trouble—too many police—too many inquisitive noses. Gradually it is dying out—the black candle. There is another idol in its place.

The morphine needle—that's the slave-driver now.

Morphine and cocaine and, worst of all, heroin, and next to that, in hideous cruelty, marijuana—the American hemp which drives to murder as no other drug can drive.

They go on raising the opium poppy in India and in various parts of the Orient, but now they refine the juice of it and make it deadlier and surer and swifter and easier to get, and easier to use.

Where there were 100 opium smokers, there are thousands of morphine slaves — hundreds of thousands of them all over the world. But by far the most of them right here in free America.

And 90 per cent of the slaves of the needle are under 20 years old.

Even the Babies

Three different large medical associations are discussing ways and means of treating infant addicts.

Oh, yes; they are slaves to the needle when they are only a few days old. Born slaves, with slave mothers and slave fathers. So many of them, that the treatment of them is getting to be a recognized part of medical education.

The story of the living dead—not a pleasant thing to hear, but just about time we learned the truth of it from beginning to end and made up our mind what to do about it—you and I.

first trial was ruled out. Fourteen other witnesses testified, including the widow of Mellett, but the court held their testimony did not pin guilt on Lengel.

When the state closed its case, counsel for Lengel at once moved that the court direct a verdict of not guilty. Judge Lones handed down a lengthy decision this morning upholding the defense's contention.

Lengel was convicted of first degree murder at the first trial in Canton, along with three others. He served several months in Ohio State Penitentiary, when he was granted a new trial by the Appellate Court on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence. The Stark County Court later granted a change of venue to Columbiana county.

Now serving life sentences in the Ohio State Penitentiary in addition to Streitenberger are Patrick McDermott, of Nant-Y-Glo, Pa., and Benjamin Rudner, of Massillon, O. Louis Mazer, of Canton, turned state's evidence and was given five to 20 years after pleading guilty to manslaughter in the Mellett slaying.

CONSTABLE'S DEATH DECLARED SUICIDE

A coroner's jury today decided that Grant Shaner, 58, constable and garage proprietor at Harwick, came to his death on February 7 from a bullet fired into his body by himself. Before he died, Shaner is said to have told his son that he was shot by "a small man." Evidence introduced at the inquest indicated suicide.

WRECKED BLAME COUNTY

Failure of the Allegheny County Road Department to remove snowdrifts that have closed the McMurray road in Upper St. Clair township since Saturday night was declared to have resulted early today in the wrecking of several automobiles and trucks. The accidents were caused by motorists driving their cars into the ditch in their efforts to "buck" the hillocks of snow and ice formed across the road. Bus lines between Pittsburgh and Washington still are operated over the state road through Bridgeville and Carnegie.

Residents of Upper St. Clair township, who appealed to the Allegheny county authorities Saturday, say that they received no response, and the wind that swept the summits of Rocky Ridge yesterday rendered the condition of the road more dangerous. On the Washington county side of the ridge the highway is protected by snow fences and in addition to this protection the Washington County Road Department drove snow plows to the county line. It is at this point that trucks and passenger cars were pitched from the road when they struck drifts.

Joe Gaudes, superintendent of the division embracing the McMurray road, was said by road department officers to be preparing his report on the condition of the highways in his district today.

2 County Warrants Lost

Two warrants drawn on the county treasurer's office, amounting to $632,180.29, are missing from the files in the county controller's office, it was announced today. Assistant Deputy Controller Nevin Woodside and accountants of Ernst & Ernst, auditing county books, made the discovery in checking over the canceled warrants.

One warrant was against Attorney F. C. Beutel for $600,000 to transfer the money from one fund to another. Attorney Beutel assisted former Controller Charles C. McGovern in his audit several months ago. The other warrant, for $32,180.29, was against Maj. W. T. Rees, head bookkeeper during McGovern's regime, for the McGovern audit payroll.

Controller Robert G. Woodside has asked Commissioner McGovern to help search for the warrants.

"There is nothing wrong," said Controller Woodside. "The money is accounted for, but we wish to have our records complete."

The auditors start tomorrow on records of the fee offices.

Buried under dust-covered old books and records, the much-discussed county property and equipment ledger book has been found. The book, which lists all county owned property, was dug up yesterday when Deputy Controller Nevin Woodside, assisting auditors in compiling a financial statement of the county, started delving in a filing case in the Controller's office. The last entry had been made in January, 1919. Controller Robert G. Woodside said he would open a new ledger.

Among interesting entries in the ledger is the purchase of the courthouse property, Fifth avenu and Grant street. The property, purchased from James Ross in 1833 for $20,000, today is assessed at $3,075,000.

Woman Dies as Torch

By International News Service.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Feb. 21.—An unidentified woman who was found in the woods near here last night with her clothing enveloped in flames, died early today in All Souls' Hospital here. State police said she apparently had been knocked down and set afire, and that her clothing had been saturated with gasoline.

Leno Campbell, of Bernardsville, N. J., saw the "human torch" and heard the woman's screams while driving along the state highway. He covered the woman's body with snow and drove to Bernardsville, where he notified Policeman Charles Cavanaught. When the pair returned the woman's clothing was again burning.

DIES IN HOSPITAL

Campbell again extinguished the flames and the woman was rushed to the hospital, but physicians were unable to save her life. Police questioned Campbell as to why he did not take the woman to the hospital when he first saw her instead of waiting until he had summoned aid.

It is believed the woman may have lived in Buffalo, N. Y. She wore a sealskin coat which bore the label, "Louis, Furrier, Buffalo, N. Y." She was well dressed. Her hat bore the label, "Bedell's, Paris."

The victim was about 40 years old, with gray hair. She wore gold glasses, and on her left arm was a gold wrist watch. There were no definite clues as to her identity or to a possible assailant.

While police admitted the woman might have committed suicide, they clung to the belief that she had been knocked down where she was found, or had been dragged there and set afire.

Marks on the ground around the spot were taken by police to indicate either that the woman had been dragged along the ground for some distance or that a struggle had taken place.

Policeman Cavanaught said he believed the woman had been attacked and thrown from an automobile.

"A bruise on her head and shoulder indicated she was tossed overboard. There were also bruises on her throat."

TO SHIP GUESTS TO PARIS FOR CELEBRATION

A wedding anniversary in Paris, to which the guests will be transported from New York on an ocean liner, is the unusual celebration planned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. May of Pittsburgh. Invitations have been sent to about 70 guests.

The party will be held in the Grand Hotel, Paris, and the guests will sail from New York on April 18 on the liner Aquitania. The return, it is expected, will be made on the Berengaria, which will arrive in New York on May 11.

Mr. and Mrs. May now are on a tour of Africa.

to monogamy, realizing that one woman is a good deal more than any one man can understand, in one lifetime.

OUR Army is planning a "mechanized force," an Army on wheels and "caterpillar" tracks, instead of men marching afoot, or on horseback.

Back numbers of illustrated British publications will show the thing in action. Britain has whole regiments of tractors with cannons mounted in front, heavier cannon hauled behind—all the fighters between heavy armor plate.

SUCH a mechanical Army has nothing to fear from any old-fashioned weapon, except the lucky shot of a big cannon. But the airman, with his TNT bomb can take care of the "tank." Unluckily, our military geniuses have not yet been able to realize the value of tanks OR airplanes on a big scale. We are the most advanced nation in inventions, the most backward in using inventions.

AN UNFORTUNATE woman, of about forty, sat down in Miss Aimee Semple McPherson's temple, Los Angeles, having swallowed much poison, and handed her unknown neighbor a card with these words written.

"Destitute, unable to find employment. I came here to enter eternity. A pauper."

THIS emphasises the advice given here. When you come to California bring enough money to carry you for six months, at least, and then take you back again.

Wonderful opportunities here for the man with money to invest, also peace, comfort, longer life and inexpensive living—with no coal bills—for those with modest incomes. But do not come without money.

WALL STREET cannot decide whether it is dying, or only frightened. Everything was mixed yesterday with sales of 2,600,000 shares generally "off."

W. D. Klausman, very wise, says 80 different stocks "loaning flat" would indicate a wide short interest. The wise bears decide to cover, while they may. That covering, and cheap money, at four and a quarter, comfort the gambling lambs that know what it is all about only after it is all over.

FOOD conditions in Russia are said to be bad, approaching famine conditions in some places. Bolshevism may realize the truth of Prudhomme's statement that monarchies are destroyed by poverty and republics by wealth. A communist autocracy comes under the "monarchy" heading. If it faces famine, which is poverty's worst result, it will not last long.

HOWEVER, there is always a tendency to exaggerate Russia's troubles. Henry Ford, who tells Mr. Bernstein that he thinks Russia is doing well, sells tractors in thousands to Russian farmers, and may have information better than that of the Associated Press representative.

HENRY FORD thinks this government should recognize Russia's government. So does everybody else, not more or less influenced by financial geese that bought the bonds of the Czar or Kerensky.

TWO items of good news: Dr. Harris, New York's health commissioner, announces the development of a remedy useful in lobar pneumonia—at least in fifty per cent of cases. The city hall will provide the remedy.

THE General Hospital at Madison, Wis., reports excellent results in treating cases of infantile paralysis with hot water baths. For information, write to the hospital. The paralyzed muscles floating lightly in the hot water—about 100 degrees — and carefully manipulated, regain, slowly, their lost power of motion.

Clergy Condemn Dry Law

POLL URGES MODIFYING OF ACT

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—After a poll of the Episcopal clergy of the United States, the Church Temperance Society met at Town Hall and recommended a reconsideration of national prohibition, at the same time admitting that it was a failure.

The Rev. Charles A. Livingston, of Setauket, L. I., was chairman of the meeting, and said the society is deeply concerned over "the deplorable conditions which have developed in the attempt to enforce national prohibition."

The report of the committee on a nation-wide poll of the clergy was overwhelmingly in favor of a modification of the Volstead act, most of the ministers declaring prohibition a rank failure.

A questionnaire was sent to some 5,361 clergymen, and approximately 3,000 replies were received. More than three to one were in favor of what they termed "a return of real temperance and a modification of the existing prohibition laws."

In addition to the questionnaire hundreds of letters have been received by the society, Dr. Livingston declared, from bishops, rectors and others setting forth their views that prohibition is wrong in principle and contrary to scripture.

A resolution was adopted by the society which stated in part:

"Whereas the attempt at prohibition as embodied in the Volstead act has hampered the medical profession, corrupted politics, and made the underworld semi-respectable, thereby setting bad examples to the young who are receiving their training in character—"

"Therefore, be it resolved that the Church Temperance Society approve the efforts of Senator Borah and Representative La Guardia to clarify and focus the attention of the people upon the prohibition issue by means of questions addressed to the presidential candidates."

Rather Fly Than Be Candidate, Will Says

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 21.—Left Chicago Sunday night at 10 o'clock in a snow storm and flew to Omaha. These mail babies go through, they can get through weather that most people couldn't find their way from the house to the garage.

WILL ROGERS.

With a well lighted course, good planes and good pilots, it's safer and more gratifying than running for a presidential nomination, which seems to be the other popular fad nowadays. The farmers out here threaten to keep Norris as Senator in Washington till they get relief. If I was you, Mr. Coolidge, I would take care of the farmers at once.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Winks at Drink On Vote Fraud Jolt Eve

William Bolster, 74, of 1316 Sandusky street, scheduled to be sentenced Friday in Criminal Court for election frauds, was arrested early today on the North Side on a charge of drunkenness.

In Allegheny Police Court he told Magistrate E. M. Hough "I'll get enough on Friday."

"Cheer up!" Hough advised. "You're discharged here."

SEEK POISONER OF PET DOGS

A reward of $50 has been offered by the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society for the arrest of those responsible for the poisoning of four dogs in Brookline within the last week. It was also reported that cats and chickens had also been poisoned.

A valuable bird dog owned by R. J. Allen, a druggist, of 318 Aidyl avenue, Brookline, died yesterday, while Mrs. W. B. Haynes, of 308 Aidyl avenue, reported the death of the family dog. Four other dogs are known to have died and others poisoned, one of the dead pets being owned by Fireman William S. Fowler, of 306 Aidyn avenue, who yesterday found what he believed to be a portion of poisoned meat near his home. He sent it to the bureau of animal industry at Harrisburg for analysis.

LINDY LANDS ST. LOUIS MAIL, BEATS SCHEDULE

5 BUDDIES TRAIL FLIER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed his air mail round trip to Chicago today, arriving here at 9:06 a. m., making the 90-mile hop from Springfield in 54 minutes. He was nine minutes ahead of his scheduled landing time.

His time for the 285-mile hop from Chicago, with stops at Pearia and Springfield, was 2 hours and 59 minutes.

"Lindy" piloted his Douglas plane ahead of the five other planes which left here with him yesterday. He carried 12 sacks of mail.

BUDDIES TRAIL LINDY

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who returned to his old job as air mail pilot "just for a day," hopped off from municipal airport at 6:07 o'clock this morning in a mail-filled plane, bound for St. Louis. Five other planes, all packed with special "Lindbergh air mail" and piloted by the famous flier's former buddies in the service, completed the squadron.

The first leg of the trip, from St. Louis to Chicago, was negotiated yesterday on scheduled time, the fliers bringing the heaviest shipment of airmail ever carried between two cities. They left St. Louis yesterday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock, and arrived here shortly after dark.

Five thousand spectators braved the cold weather to crowd the fringe of the flying field here and shout their welcome. As soon as Lindbergh's red and silver striped plane came to a perfect landing he darted from the cockpit to a waiting mail truck to avoid the crowd.

Later he was located by Postmaster Arthur Lueder and taken to the mail pilots' apartment near the field for dinner. The meal assumed the importance of a banquet at which were present his companions on the flight and a number of prominent officials.

Lindbergh insisted on spending the night with his buddies in the mail fliers' "barracks," located in the same building. The famous aviator appeared fresh this morning. He said he had enjoyed a good night's rest and never felt better in his life.

More than 200,000 pieces of mail, bearing the official stamp "Lindbergh Again Flies the Airmail" were in the St. Louis to Chicago shipment. Approximately the same amount was in the packets for the return trip.

NO FOUL PLAY IN GIRL'S DEATH

County detectives yesterday reported that no evidence of foul play could be found in their investigation into the death of Anna Matzo, 11, who was fatally wounded when accidentally shot by her brother, Michael, 14, in their home at Wall borough Saturday night. The girl died Sunday in the Braddock General Hospital. After the child's death it was rumored that a nurse at the hospital had uncovered evidence of foul play, but the investigation discredited this.

TWO OUT TO BREAK -:- CAMPBELL'S -:- SPEED RECORD

36 CYLINDERS "RARIN'" TO GO

J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer, has built a racing auto which he hopes will shatter the speed record established by Capt. M`·`'m Campbell, daring British driver, who Sunday clipped off the record breaking official time of 206.95 miles an hour. White's car, which he calls a Triplex, carries three 12-cylinder motors.

RAY KEECH

Ray Keech unlimbered White's giant machine yesterday, but was forced from an official try at the record by a minor accident. He said the car attained a speed of "more than 253 miles an hour." Keech was scalded by live steam.

LOCKHART IN HIS BLACKHAWK

Frank Lockhart, in the meantime, is grooming his comparatively tiny Stutz Blackhawk to topple Campbell's new honor. The machine is ice-cooled and without a radiator. The Blackhawk is but three feet high and has a ground clearance of just five inches. In a test yesterday he was officially timed at 200.22 miles an hour.

SLUMP SWAYED RATE DECISION, ESCH ADMITS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Economic depression in the Pennsylvania and Ohio coal fields was a primary factor in causing the Interstate Commerce Commission to reverse its decision in the lake cargo coal rate case, Commissioner John J. Esch admitted today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. He denied, however, the contention of Senator Neely, Democrat, of West Virginia, that the commission wanted to transfer this depression to the southern coal states or to equalize it among all the bituminous fields.

Esch likewise declared that there was nothing in the law specifically permitting the commission to take the cost of producing coal into consideration in fixing rates, although "occasionally it is necessary to construe the law in that manner in order to arrive at just and reasonable rates."

Senator Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, said that inasmuch as the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields were already favored over the southern district in the matter of freight rates to Great Lakes ports, depression in the former area could not have been due to the rate structure. Therefore, he held, an increase in the differential granted Pennsylvania and Ohio should not have been based on economic conditions in that section.

TWO FIREMEN INJURED AT SPOT WHERE SIX MET DEATH

However true the saying may be that "lightning never strikes twice in the same place," it does not apply to fire, city firemen were saying today, and pointed to the blaze at 235 Fifth avenue, in which Hosemen Charles Grimm and Thomas Thorlow were injured yesterday, in proof. Six firemen were killed in a fire on the same spot on July 7, 1900.

At that time 235 Fifth avenue was occupied by T. G. Evans' glass and china store. The building was destroyed by flames, which caused $100,000 damage, and in fighting them Capt. Daniel Campbell, John Griffen, Stewart Burns and Clair Crawford, of No. 4 Engine Company, and John Lewis and Max Butterbach, of No. 11 company, lost their lives.

The victims were killed when a floor collapsed.

SLIPS ON ICE, BREAKS ANKLE

Slipping on the icy pavement in Elm street near Wylie avenue early today, Mrs. Mary O'Brien, 44, of 99 Fifty-eighth street, suffered a broken right ankle. She was removed to the Mercy Hospital by police at the Center Avenue Police Station.

A second accident occurred at the same place a short time later, when Milton Bell, 15, a Negro, of 1914 Enoch street, was injured in a coasting accident. The boy's sled ran into a parked automobile, and his right leg was injured. He was taken home.

RADIOLA 17
the lighting-circuit receiver that has revolutionized radio

SUCH a "wonder box" as Radiola 17 a few years ago would have been thought beyond the range of human achievement.

It is the result of 26 years of radio research culminating in the work of the 200 electrical and acoustical engineers in the radio laboratories of the Radio Corporation of America and its associated companies—General Electric and Westinghouse.

To more than 100,000 homes it has brought a new conception of radio simplicity and perfection.

Radiola 17 is as easily operated as an electric fan—a touch of the finger brings in the fine programs from the great broadcasting stations, with amazing fidelity and realism. It is ruggedly built of specially tested materials, insuring long life and dependability, and is self-contained in a fine mahogany cabinet.

Radiola 17 is the most popular Radiola ever offered because it meets these exacting tests of a fine radio instrument:

Sensitivity—ability to pick up broadcasting stations, near and far, over the entire broadcast range.

Selectivity—ability to select the program from one station to the exclusion of all others.

Tone Fidelity—ability to reproduce faithfully—realistically—music and voice as transmitted from the broadcasting station.

Simplicity—inexpensive operation as simple as an electric lamp or electric fan, at the touch of the finger.

Dependability—long life, with a minimum of upkeep—resulting from precision manufacture with the finest materials under competent engineering direction.

SIFT JAIL DEATH VICTIM'S BRUISES

Members of the family of Patrick O'Shea, 53, of 5158 Booth street, have joined with the coroner's office in investigating O'Shea's death in Mercy Hospital Saturday, after he collapsed in jail from a fractured skull. He had served five days on a charge of drunkenness before being stricken ill.

Patrick F. O'Shea, Jr., son of the dead man, wants to know where his father suffered two black eyes and a bruised nose, noted, he says, on the records at Mercy Hospital.

Deputy Coroner John Danner is seeking to determine why the Homeopathic Hospital, Oakland police and jail attendants failed to discover that O'Shea had a fractured skull. He was struck by a taxicab February 11, at Forbes and Semple streets, taken to the Homeopathic and later to Oakland station, where he was committed to jail the following morning by Magistrate William J. Soost.

Raymond J. Sauer, driver for the Green Taxicab Company, whose cab hit O'Shea, is at liberty under $2,500 bail pending the inquest.

FINE FOUR IN BOMB ATTEMPT

When four men were arraigned in Central Police Court today for the attempted bombing at the home of Coratino Martino, 15 McKnight street, on January 20, Martino testified they were good friends and could not possibly have been implicated in the plot. Previously, detectives said, he and other members of his family had indicated otherwise.

Magistrate George H. England fined each of the men $25. They are Sam Moliso, 32, of 1012 Webster avenue; Mike Anturo, 32, of Rook, Pa.; Joe Rainieri, 30, of 1314 Gilmore street, and Rosario Maguna, 35, of 1728 Wabash street.

BREAKS WEIGHT LAW, FINED

William Iechelberger, manager of a grocery store in East Ohio street, North Side, was assessed fines amounting to almost $100 yesterday by Alderman George J. Anderson, accused of selling groceries in "underweight" packages. The charge was preferred by Chief Ordinance Officer Murray G. Livingston, who said he had had his workers make purchases in the store. No defense was offered by Iechelberger.

MOONSHINE KAYOS FLORIDA GIRL HERE

probably to one of the camps of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

The definite itinerary will be worked out in Pittsburgh after committee members confer with representatives of the operators and miners' union.

A deputy sergeant-at-arms of the Senate has been detailed to handle all arrangements.

NO OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION

David A Barry, sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, has engaged eight rooms at the William Penn Hotel for the committee. He said they would come to Pittsburgh on a Baltimore and Ohio train at 8:55 a. m.

Neither the United Mine Workers nor the operators have been officially notified of the impending visit.

Philip Murray, international vice president of the union, said he had not been consulted about it nor informed of the committee's plans, and C. E. Lesher, executive vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and Horace F. Baker, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, said the same thing.

Mr. Baker said he expected the committee to visit his company's mines and would ask them to do so. He reiterated that he welcomed the investigation.

Mr. Lesher said he spoke for all the operators in saying that they hoped the committee would visit many of the mines.

"The Pittsburgh Coal Company," he said, "would like the senators to visit all of its mines, and will offer them every facility to help them in their inquiry."

BURGLARS START FIRE IN SALEM STORE

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 21.—Burglars in the general store of Harvey A. Steele, at Salem, early today, are believed to have started a fire which destroyed the store and damaged the residence of Edward I. Lewis. The loss is estimated at $6,000.

$29,155 RAISED FOR MINERS

Pittsburgh businessmen have contributed $29,155 to their committee for the relief of suffering miners' families, it was announced yesterday at a joint meeting of the Businessmen's-Clergymen's Relief Executive Committees, in the office of William L. Monro, president of the American Window Glass Company.

This added to more than $5,000 already contributed to the clergymen's committee will take care of conditions now existing in the Pittsburgh district for a period of about three months. The committees have decided, however, to extend their work into Fayette and Washington counties, after the Allegheny county districts are cared for.

The preliminary survey of conditions in Allegheny county and part of Washington county, started two weeks ago, has been completed, Augustus K. Oliver, chairman of the Business Men's Committee, and Rev. E. N. Klopper, chairman of the Clergymen's Committee, announced.

961 ASK AID

The survey disclosed that in 24 towns in the districts investigators talked to members of 2,173 unemployed families, of which 961 have asked relief. In the families asking aid were 6,727 persons. Many of the families have become self-supporting or have obtained relief from other sources. The investigators for the committee have visited about one-fourth of the families in the district, it is estimated.

The decision to extend relief work into Washington and Fayette counties followed a conference between Mr. Oliver, Rev. Mr. Klopper, Dr. Ralph B. Urmy and Phillip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, who explained that conditions in these counties are worse even than in Allegheny county, because various organizations have raised funds independently for relief here.

THE 79TH ANNIVERSARY SALE

Begins Tomorrow

Every department welcomes you to this 79th birthday celebration which begins tomorrow. Each has its quota of Anniversary specials... new, wanted Spring things, assembled from the markets of the world and priced as at no other time.

More than a million dollars' worth of typical Horne quality merchandise, covering every practical requirement of wardrobe and household, is provided for this special Anniversary selling... all of which will be at your selection tomorrow. The mere announcement of the Sale is sufficient to crowd the store to its capacity the opening day, so well is the Anniversary Sale known and established in the minds of the public from past events. Each Anniversary Sale we strive to make more attractive than its predecessors, and this has been the case this year.

The Sale will last seven days. We have estimated quantities to the best of our judgement but some items always prove more popular than others. Early attendance, therefore, is recommended. The spirit of a party will pervade the occasion. There will be the thrill of the crowds, and the enjoyment of seeing and meeting people, in addition to the pleasure of profitable shopping.

46 DANCE 15 HRS., STILL GOING

Completing 15 hours of continuous stepping in the marathon dance now under way at Danceland, 23 couples remained on the floor at 3 o'clock this afternoon, six having dropped out during the early morning hours.

Of the six couples which quit, three were forced out through inability of the male partner to keep up longer.

Apparently able to keep dancing for many hours, the 23 couples shuffled about the floor to the jazzy music of a non-stop victrola. Stockings were rolled down, marcels and permanent waves of many of the girl dancers were gone, eyes were heavy from the continuous grind of rythmic stepping, but the hearts were beating faster time than the music in an endeavor to break the record and win the prize.

One couple forced out of the race gave as its excuse the necessity of the male member of the team to get to work at his office.

"You poor prune!" denounced the girl member, who was as fresh as a daisy and wanted to remain in the race.

In order to establish a new record the winning couple would have to continue stepping until about daybreak Thursday morning. The present record of 52 hours and 42 minutes was made by a Davenport, Ia., couple less than a month ago. The winning couple will receive $100. Starting at 10 o'clock this morning the public was admitted. Dr. Daniel E. Sable, chief police and fire surgeon, examined all dancers before they were permitted to enter the contest.

Black coffee and sandwiches form the favorite food of the dancers, although Milton Crandall, manager of Danceland, has made arrangements for the contestants to be served with whatever kind of nourishment they desire. The couples dance for six hours with 15 minutes as time out for resting.

USE CLEAVER TO CRACK SAFE

Robbers who forced a rear door to enter the E. M. Thompson Community Market, 319 Lang avenue, early today, used one of Thompson's cleavers to knock off the combination knob from the safe.

They took $400 from the safe, $100 from two cash registers and escaped after passing up several dollars in pennies and Canadian money.

"3 Balls" Means Highball at "Pawnshop"

A new kind of pawnshop, where whisky instead of money was "loaned" on articles of value, was described in Allegheny Police Court today.

William Herbert, 44, a Negro, of 3 Metcalf street, said he went to the home of Crosby Evans, 32, of 2140 Charles street, and got a quart of whisky for his watch. Evans said he gave the Negro $2 for the timepiece. The case was held over.

NAMES IN BOOK SEIZED IN RAID SUPRESSED

A hearing before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker on the government's libel seeking condemnation of 340 cases of assorted whiskies and wines, seized May 4, 1927, in the home of Walter H. Butler, 350 Atwood street, would have proved more interesting yesterday to the spectators if 100 or more names in a little brown book, seized in the raid, had been read into the record.

They were the names and addresses of many men prominent in commercial, professional and social life of Pittsburgh, but there were no explanatory notations to indicate why they were in the book or why the book was in Butler's home. The court heard Butler's petition for suppression of the seized liquors as evidence against him on the ground that his home had been entered without the authority of a search and seizure warrant. It was testified that the prohibition agents entered his residence by a tunnel from his garage, breaking down two doors.

They testified they had had the residence under surveillance, finally arresting a man carying liquor from the garage to an automobile.

The court reserved decision, permitting counsel for each side to file briefs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—A new link in trans-Atlantic radio telephoning was established yesterday when Secretary of State Kellogg from his office here conversed for four minutes with the Crown Prince at Stockholm, Sweden.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Sure Way to Stop Night Coughing

A Prescription that Ends Night Coughs in 15 Minutes

Persistent night coughing is usually due to causes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. A remarkable prescription known as Thoxine, working on an entirely different principle, goes direct to the cause, and is guaranteed to stop the stubbornest cough within 15 minutes. One swallow is all that's needed. If it fails, get your money back. No chloroform or other harmful drugs. Safe for children. Equally good for sore throat, for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. Ask for Thoxine. 35c, 60c and $1.00. At all druggists.

Buttermilk Fine For Tightening Sagging Muscles

So many women who failed to get results with high priced astringents have proved the value of buttermilk and cream in gently tightening sagging muscles and firming the skin that they are glad to pass the good word along.

Get the genuine old-fashioned buttermilk and cream already prepared for use by asking at the drug store for Howard's Buttermilk Cream. There must be no doubt about the result or May's Drug Stores are authorized to return the purchase price. Be sure to give this beauty hint a real trial.

Aim to Live 100

An Easy System to Follow for People Half Dead Around the Age of 40.

Millions of people who suffer needlessly from constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, liver, kidney and impure blood ailments should follow this proven advice: Go to your druggist, ask him for a box of the famous Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea.

Begin right now to put back power and health into your blood. Take a cupful of the rich vitalizing plant juices of these precious herbs once each week. Remember, no cheating. Once a week regularly, that's the system, and stick to it. In a very short time you will begin to feel like a new person. Yes, you will feel years younger.

Further, just to break up a cold quickly and avoid "Flu" or pneumonia, Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea is worth ten times its small cost. Remember, ask your druggist at once. Don't put it off. Start in right now to vitalize and build up your blood.

A C RADIO

Model 37 The astonishing price of the new, six-tube, FULL-VISION Dial, self-contained A. C. set includes everything except tubes and a speaker. No power accessories required—no batteries, no charger. For use with 110-115 volt, 60-cycle, Alternating Current. Uses six A. C. amplifying tubes, and one rectifying tube.

without tubes

JUST a few weeks ago we announced a radical advance in radio—a self-contained electric set reduced to its essentials.

Just a few weeks ago—but already this new A. C. set has broken all sales records. Already this new set is thrilling listeners in more than 100,000 homes—this is in addition to the 1,400,000 other Atwater Kent sets which are in operation.

Every day more and more families are finding out what it means to explore the airways with the help of a perfected instrument that requires no attention whatever except turning it on and off.

One person hears the Atwater Kent 37 in another's home, and thus its reputation spreads.

Judge it by what it does—

At an Atwater Kent dealer's—or better still, in your own home—snap the switch that brings the power from the house-lighting circuit to the A. C. tubes. Turn the FULL-VISION Dial and see how unhesitatingly the broadcasting stations answer your call.

Select your station—it's there, it's clear. Listen. Your neighbor may have told you that the tone quality of this new A. C. set is the best he ever heard. That's all right, but what do you think? And remember, as you get the "feel" of this set, as you find out how true-toned, how selective, how simple it is—how easy to operate—remember that what it gives you it will continue to give you. For socket power does not run down—and the set does not deteriorate. It is made to last—every set factory-tested or inspected 222 times.

—and how it looks

You're going to have your radio a long time. You're going to live with it. With this in mind, we have given particular attention to the lines and finish of this set, as well as to its internal design. The result is a cabinet of astonishing compactness, easy to place anywhere, and of extremely pleasing appearance. The finish—a satiny effect in your choice of two color combinations—is entirely new.

—and what it costs

That an A. C. set which so proudly meets every possible test should cost so little is surprising only to those who are not acquainted with the resources and methods of the manufacturer.

Just bear in mind that the bigger the scale on which a commodity can be made, the more economically it is made. Atwater Kent Radio is made on the biggest scale of all. Public demand, which has built our business, has also enabled us to perfect the processes of precision manufacture. Result: lower prices—and better radio.

Yes, much better! Try this new A. C. set yourself. You'll see.

Model E Radio Speaker $24

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

Lenore Ulric in "Lulu Belle," Raw Tragedy of Black Belt, Shows Belasco as Hogarth

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

WHAT is art? After seeing "Lulu Belle," as played by Lenore Ulric at the Nixon Theater last night, many people may have asked themselves that question. They may have asked themselves whether the whims and frenzies of a colored strumpet are a fit subject for drama. The question will rise—and yet the answer is ready. That answer is another question. Is Hogarth an artist? "Lulu Belle," as written by Edward Sheldon and Charles MacArthur, as staged by David Belasco, as played by Lenore Ulrich, is Hogarthian. It is raw. It is not even psychology—it is animal anatomy. But it is life—the life of the negro underworld etched with infinite detail—and if it is revolting, if it leaves that unpleasant aftertaste we have heard so much about, so does Hogarth. And Hogarth is a great artist.

GEORGE SEIBEL

The real question is whether "Lulu Belle" is true. That question, in a general way, must be answered in the affirmative. The only doubt that might arise is whether this gutter Venus of New York's black belt could be as witty as the playwrights have made her. She could easily be coarser, and probably was—but would her repartee flash like Lulu Belle's. This thinly veneered savage has a rapier tongue playing with paradoxes. She is wicked enough to be real, but too clever to be true.

Aside from that point, the tragedy of Sheldon and MacArthur is throbbing with red blood and purple passion. They have taken something from Carmen to put into the character. They have added the superstition of the Congo jungle and the sophistication of the red lights. The result is a terrible and repellent figure—sordid, sensual, raw and ravenous. That is how Lenore Ulric plays her—serpent, tigress, toad. It is a masterpiece of acting, realistic as the Russian school has taught us realism, worked out perfectly in every detail, deeply impressive and devastating. It is the grim gray world of Dostoevsky, close to the lurid lake of Dante.

In its technique, too, this play smells of Moscow. It is true there are the tricks Sheldon had already acquired when he wrote "Salvation Nell," but he has hidden the theatric skeleton with ultimate skill. A vast canvas—there are 59 names in the cast of characters—stirs with continual life. In this panorama a few figures stand out with startling vividness—next to Lulu Belle the part of George Randall, played by Frank M. Thomas, the barber whom Lulu ensnares to her own destruction as well as his. Other figures of impressive strength are Uncle Gustus, played by William Friend, and the unctuously droll Wilberforce Walker, played by William St. James. A score of minor portraits flash across the scene and are gone, like waves in a human whirlpool.

The play of "Lulu Belle," in short, is the climax of Belasco's method, gripping you with fearful veracity—taking the lid off life in the torrid zone of the Black Belt, showing a Cleopatra of the Congo, dancing to her doom. The moralist will be satisfied to know that "the wages of sin is death." But sensitive souls with squeamish minds will still wonder whether this is art. Not everybody admires Hogarth.

FRANK VAN HOVEN TOPS SHERIDAN SQUARE BILL

Frank Van Hoven, comedian, billed as "the mad magician," was featured in the vaudeville show which opened in the Sheridan Square yesterday. "What, No Women," a sort of 15-minute musical comedy, was another feature. The players were Al Weber, Mae and Helene Swift, Gloria Ivan and Billy Shutt. Homer Romaine performed feats some feet above the stage floor. Tock and Toy, a Chinese couple, sang, danced and talked. The Holly Sisters appeared in "A Wee Bit o' Fiddle." The photoplay was "Chicago After Midnight," a picture with an underworld theme. Ralph Ince, who directed it, plays the principal role. Short screen entertainment and an organlogue also were offered.

JOLSON, "JAZZ SINGER," AGAIN OLYMPIC PICTURE

The Olympic again is showing Al Jolson, in "The Jazz Singer," a worth-while picture, which made a strong impression in that theater last week. The presentation of the picture is combined with Vitaphone effects, including songs by Jolson and some dialogue of the photoplay. Additional Vitaphone numbers and news pictures complete the program.

MINSTRELS TOP ALDINE BILL

There are several amusing birds on the Aldine stage this week. One is The Golden Bird, a canary that shows unusual intelligence, such as impersonating the calls of various other birds. A young woman, with a violin, helps the canary. Another amusing bird is the nonsensical comedian, Harry Breen. Harry is responsible for what may be called "a childish fantasy." He capers about the stage in a 6-year-old manner and lets loose a barrage of chatter that is as funny as it is absurd—and it just is. Bernard and Kranz prove a rather happy combination. They tell a few stories and sing a few songs. The Primrose Minstrels appear as the headliner. Among the players are some who were with the original company 40 years ago. The minstrels mix old-time song and dance with entertainment of modern type. Also on the stage bill is the Robbins Trio, comprising three roller skaters who whirl through about 10 minutes of difficult feats. The photoplay is "The Divine Woman," starring Jetta Goudal. Jetta plays a siren and a spy, who enters a loveless marriage with a French colonel and then falls desperately in love with the colonel's brother.

ANTI-WAR PICTURE IS FEATURE IN PENN

"The Enemy," with Lillian Gish in the leading role, is being shown on the Penn screen, giving Miss Gish better opportunity than she has had recently to display her finely balanced poise as an actress in both light and tragic reaction. Adapted from Channing Pollock's play of the same title, "The Enemy" is an arraignment of war mostly in thunderous notes. Ralph Forbes, as the hero; George Fawcett, as war profiteer, and Frank Currier as a gentle disciple of peace, all add to the general excellence of the acting. On the stage "Jazz A La Carte" pleased. A hit was made by Paul Howard, remarkable contortionist dancer. Dancing by Al and Ray Samuels, songs by Rose Marie, a musical contrast of classic and jazz by the orchestra and 10 singers, songs by Peggy English and Dick Leibert's organ solo completed an agreeable bill.

COHENS, KELLYS NOW THIRD WEEK IN CAMEO

"The Cohens and the Kellys in Paris," a sequel to "The Cohens and Kellys," is being seen for a third week in the Cameo. Kate Price and J. Farrell MacDonald portray Mr. and Mrs. Kelly. The Cohen parents are played by George Sidney and Vera Gordon. News pictures and a new "Collegians" film is on the bill.

"Broadway," Pitt Melodrama, Amuses and Thrills With Comedy, Murder and Romance

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

IF YOU wish to see melodrama that is melodrama you need not look any farther than the Pitt, where "Broadway," which can rightfully be termed a melodramatic classic, thrilled and amused a large audience last night. This play of gunmen, hi-jackers, bootleggers, vaudeville hoofers and shady cabarets is almost too modern, though, to be completely defined by the word, "melodrama," if that term visualizes to you such old-fashioned dirty work at the crossroads as the plot which has the hero on a log carriage in a sawmill moving swiftly toward the whirling saw while the gloating villain gloats another gloat.

If that, or a train rushing toward a bridge which has been weakened by the villain's saw, is your idea of melodrama you owe it to yourself to see "Broadway" and see what a real blood and thunder melodrama can be like when it is pepped up and made as natural as a night in our own Hill district.

The action of the play all takes place in a night club of the kind the police watch and much of it takes place while the entertainers of the cabaret audience are going out on the stage to perform or returning after appearances to quarrel among themselves for a brief moment as they adjust their costumes, then resume their professional smiles and dash back to the stage again for an encore or the grand finale. The scene throughout is a kind of dressing room, office of the owner, and private meeting place for his friends. And such friends! Bootleggers all, and among his dancing girls is a spy of a rival of the bootlegger with whom the proprietor of the place does business.

Thither comes this rival about the middle of the first act to settle the matter of encroachment on his territory. He has no "rod," as the pistol appears to be called in the underworld, coming belligerently to make peace. So he is "bumped off" at a time when no performers are in the room and is carried out. Just like that! That is the basis of the play, which has run its dramatic course in the third act, when retribution comes in an unexpected manner, but logical under the circumstances, to the murderer.

Certainly that is plainly a crude enough story to link it up with the old ten-twent-thirt technic of playwriting, but the authors of "Broadway" have indicated their knowledge of their onions by giving their murders a novel setting, one in which much comedy and human interest and a love story is entwined. The auth[illegible]ip Dunning and George A[illegible]ave turned out what real[illegible] termed as an accomplish[illegible] such merit. The pl[illegible] superbly produced and was [illegible]llently. You will go long b[illegible] will get a greater thrill th[illegible] at the end of the second a[illegible] the central character, a chesty but terribly honest and well-meaning vaudeville dancer, defies a whole horde of gunmen, some of them experts from Chicago. This role was played by Walter Glass. "Broadway" is so successful that there are any number of companies playing it, but it is difficult to believe that any one of them has a better Roy Lane, vaudeville dancer—artist, if you please—than Walter Glass is. And the part is not easy, either.

Loretta Shea played the leading feminine role, "Billie" Moore, with whom Lane is in love and whom he wishes to protect from the attentions of a man he knows is no good. The latter, Steve Crandall, represents the polished work of Matt Briggs, an actor, who makes his character a believable bad man, suave but hard and of steely nerves. In fact every member of the company is an artist, but special mention is due to Helen Raymond as a blase actress, Eugene Redding, as the cabaret proprietor, James S. Kearney, Robert W. Craig, Eleanor Audley, Marguerite St. Clair and Ramona Kogan, the latter as a couple of constantly scrapping dancing girls.

HARRIS OFFERS SONG ACTS

Singing dominates the Harris stage this week. There is Eleanor Herbert who tra-la-la-la-las and wields a bottle of vodka. Then there is Gerald Griffin, who once sang in Covent Garden. And lastly—the song team of O'Neil and Oliver. Griffin sings mostly about the Emerald Isle and he does it well. He also tells some stories that win the chuckles. His act includes the inevitable selections by the piano accompanist—which, in this case, is worth listening to. Danny O'Neil and his feminine teammate, Oliver, are an entertaining pair. They mix funny stories with their singing. The act ends with Danny "singing" Al Smith into the White House, leaving one in doubt as to whether the applause is meant for Al or for Danny. "The Yachting Party," introduces two ventriloquists, and a Negro dancer. Marie Mang performs in the air. The feature of the bill is Al Tucker and his Society Orchestra, the members of which are all dressed up in hobo garb.

REELECTION SOUGHT BY HARRIS

Pledging himself to continue his fight for clean elections and urging the enactment of a law similar to the Baumes act in New York, which provides life imprisonment for habitual criminals, Senator Frank J. Harris today announced his candidacy for re-election in the Forty-fifth District.

Senator Harris, who was elected two years ago to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his brother, John P. Harris, has the unique distinction of having a 100 per cent record of attendance at the legislative sessions at Harrisburg. He voted for or against every bill that came before the Senate for action at the last session.

In his announcement he referred especially to the voting machine amendment, originally presented by his brother.

"Next November the people, to secure the immense advantage of voting machines must, by their votes, ratify this amendment," he said. "I sincerely trust and believe they will rise to the occasion and put the stamp of their approval on this very much needed law.

"I shall endeavor to have laws passed to stamp out the crime wave that is sweeping our state. A law similar to the Baumes act in New York state, which provides life imprisonment for habitual or fourth-time offenders, should be enacted in Pennsylvania and to secure such an enactment I shall devote an earnest effort.

SCHOOL BOOSTER

"As a member of the Committee on Education in the last session, I took a deep interest in and supported every bill that made for the upholding and upbuilding of our splendid public school system. I am an advocate of good roads and for the adequate maintenance of our excellent system of highways.

"I blieve in proper protection for banks and building and loan associations; protection of our natural resources; strict laws for protection alike of insurance companies and their policy holders; thorough study of housing conditions, so that American workingmen may have decent places in which to live at moderate rent."

best describes the demand for this new product of Atwater Kent

Public acceptance of the Model 37 is shown in a comparison of our sales figures. January sales totaled as much as the first six months of 1927.

Never before has a radio receiving set so quickly won approval. Thousands were sold in the first month after its introduction on the market. The fresh beauty of the charming satin finish, with the new color combinations makes it desired by all who see it.

The low price gives no idea of the quality of the equipment. You must hear it to appreciate its true worth—although the name of Atwater Kent alone is a full guarantee of satisfactory performance.

ALVIN OFFERS "OH KAY"

"Oh Kay," the musical vehicle in the Alvin, is all of that—O. K. Its two acts of five scenes offer tuneful melodies, dialogue that vibrates with chuckles and a versatile cast.

The plot of the piece—and it has quite a plot—revolves around one Jimmie Walker, who brings his bride to his home only to discover the house over-run with rum-runners and the cellar full of rum. Added to this he is greeted by a correspondence from his attorney informing him that a Wife No. 1 has refused to sign divorce papers. Thus, with our hero facing bigamy and bootleggers, the production starts on its rather merry way.

All of the action unfolds to the accompaniment of a fast-stepping and attractive feminine chorus. Dimpled faces and dimpled knees smile at you from behind the footlights, and, whether you prefer blondes or brunets, you will be satisfied.

The featured actress, Julia Sanderson, has ample opportunity to display versatility, for she has sort of a dual role, being a duke's sister, who assumes the garb of a housemaid for a time. Frank Crumit, her husband in real life, is co-featured with her. His smile is as broad as ever—maybe covering more territory than heretofore. The two are featured in several song selections, the most catchy being "Do-Do-Do." Miss Sanderson also lures the fancy with "Someone to Watch Over Me," which she sings while tightly hugging a rag doll. Lucky doll!

John E. Young, a bootlegger who becomes a butler through necessity, is responsible for much of the comedy. He makes his appearance with a beer case, which he labels his "hope chest."

Edith and Marion Cardell, two blond sisters with ability and personality, bring the show many bright moments. And we mustn't forget Fred Harper and his "fidgety feet," which he exploits to good advantage. There are others, too, lots of them—the rotund revenue agent and the dancing Allen McKenzie, for examples. The show also has its male chorus, which, we presume, is O. K. in its somewhat unnecessary way.

Among the things that please musically is "Clap Yo' Hands," which is sung and danced by the Cardell sisters, Harper and the ensemble.

Last night's performance, which showed a theater well filled, was in the form of a benefit, sponsored by the Women's Scholarship Organization, comprised of groups associated with the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Many persons prominent in the city's educational life were present.

Briefly, "Oh Kay" isn't a world beater or anything like that. But it makes for an entertaining evening and is, as we said before, O. K.

ACADEMY BURLESQUE TITLED "BIG REVUE"

"The Big Revue" is the ambitious title of the burlesque in the Academy, in which Geraldine McCauley, singer, is featured along with Fred Reeb, German dialect comedian. Specialties include yodling by Will Kraemer. Lou Price and Len Smith are aids in the fun scenes. Helen Gibson, leading woman, in songs; Veoletta, in special dances; Bee Cunningham and her six dancing girls, and the Robert Brothers, in acrobatic specialties, help to make the show move speedily.

JETTA GOUDAL FILM CAMERAPHONE SHOW

The screen feature in the Cameraphone is "The Forbidden Woman," starring Jetta Goudal. Miss Goudal portrays a siren and a spy, who enters a loveless marriage with a French colonel. Later she falls desperately in love with the colonel's brother. The picture develops the theme of brother love, and Jetta is missing when the final fadeout comes. A short comedy and news pictures also are on the bill.

HARRY CARROLL IN DAVIS

If there were a law against hard work, the people in the vaudeville bill in the Davis this week might invoke it, for never could the most flint-hearted efficiency expert squeeze more work out of an ensemble than Harry Carroll and Ken Murray get out of their revue. It's all right, for they work just as hard themselves and everybody seems to enjoy it. There is no rest for anybody, and everybody is as versatile as everybody else—singing, dancing, clowning—so that it's hard to single out any individual as the star. But perhaps Ann Greenway, with her lovely voice and refinement, deserves the stellar distinction if anybody does. And Ken Murray, as a comedian, is in evidence most of the time, yet never grows stale. The Collegians impersonate a whole circus, including the trained seals, and in conclusion give a burlesque of "Beau Geste" that is screamingly funny. The Gym Girls begin with their daily dozen, and exhibit every variety of dance-step in the course of the program. As already intimated, no one is allowed to loaf—and, as Harry Carroll doesn't stint his own perspiration, it must be all right for the union. This Revue is preceded by a photoplay, "Ladies Must Dress," in which Virginia Valli dresses well and acts well. The News Weekly shows particularly interesting pictures of Mussolini in action.

HYPOCRITES-SINNERS SEEN IN EAST END

"Saintly Hypocrites and Honest Sinners" is being presented in the East End Theater this week by the Harry Schwartz players. It is drama of right against might and in the end right wins. The romantic leads are played by Ray Rawlings and Blanche Wilcox. Other players are Yenda Reid, Philip Van Zandt, Ed Downes, Everett Johnstone, Beth Burke and Grace Whitcher. The drama has comedy moments.

LAST WEEK OF GAYETY FOR PRESENT SEASON

With "Town Scandals" as the attraction, the Gayety yesterday opened the final week of the season, the house to remain closed until August. The various comedy skits and specialties of "Town Scandals" featured the comedians, Jim McCauley, Harry Feldman and Jack LaMonte; Jessie Reese, prima donna; Estelle Nacek, singing and dancing leader of the choral numbers; Mina Benard, Miss Billie LaMont and Earl Root.

THEATER EMPLOYES PLAN MIDNIGHT SHOW

A midnight show for the benefit of the relief fund of the Motion Picture Operators and Stage Hands' Union will be given in the Davis Theater tonight. Acts from that theater and other houses will appear in the big program that has been arranged.

GRAND PHOTOPLAY IS "BEAU SABREUR"

"Beau Sabreur," film version of Percival C. Wren's novel, sequel to his "Beau Geste," is on the screen in the Grand. A story of the French Foreign Legion in Africa, it presents Gary Cooper as a young soldier who finds his fighting in an uprising of natives complicated by the presence of a young American girl, whom he saves from capture and with whom he falls in love. There is plenty of fighting but little sustained dramatic interest. Some comedy and good acting by Noah Beery, as a sheik, serve to keep it up to the level of an ordinary program picture. As the girl, Evelyn Brent has no such opportunity as she had in "Underworld." On the stage the Pastines, a group of male dancers and musicians, present an entertaining offering. News happenings, shown on the screen, "Topics of the Day" and orchestral music complete the bill.

COLLEGE GLEE CLUBS TO SING IN CONTEST

The second annual Intercollegiate Glee Club contest, with five colleges competing, Penn State, Allegheny, Juniata, Bucknell and Carnegie Tech, will be held Friday evening, February 24, in Carnegie Music Hall. Each school will have 30 men, who will appear in their own college song first and later in "The Broken Melody," by Sebilius, which is the competition number. The program will close with Kremser's Prayer of Thanksgiving, with 150 men singing under the direction of Harvey Gaul.

STOCK SELLING "PUBLISHER" FINED $50

The "Pittsburgh Republican, official organ of the Republican Party," will not be published.

H. J. Desser, who came here from Detroit two weeks ago, opened an office and began selling stock, subscriptions and advertising space for the paper, ended his career as a would-be publisher in Central Police Court today when he was fined $50 by Magistrate George H. England and ordered to leave town.

Desser, who at times represented himself as "William C. Ryan," was charged with fraud. Two men who had given him $10 each were at the hearing, and their money was returned. Three men, employed by Desser and arrested with him, were discharged.

PROPOSED BOND ISSUE BOOSTED TO $7,248,000

The city bond issue, to be submitted to the voters at the primary of April 24 or at a special election in May, will total $7,248,000 instead of $6,000,000, as originally announced, Councilman James F. Malone announced last night after a conference with Mayor Charles H. Kline and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt.

The largest single item will be $4,200,000 for grading, paving and curbing streets and sewer work. Spring Fashion Trends Are Forecast in the Mode For Gowns and Coats

The New Coats

Lines are more simple in the silhouette of the outer wrap. Detail of cuffs and collars are ingenious . . . fur appears lavishly on many cuffs, combined with a fur-less scarf-throw at the neckline. The cape appears on many of the models. The upstanding collar of fur is also smartly used and popular because it is so flattering a frame to the face. But every coat is slimly simple below the waistline.

Blues Are Leading

Three shades of blue lead in the coat mode . . . navy, middy (a lighter tone than navy), and corsair. Black is, of course, essentially chic. Beiges are important . . . and soft green. Coats attempt more than ever before to complement feminine grace.

Coats $59 to $350

(Kaufmann's—Fourth Floor)

Afternoon Frocks

In the feminine mode for Spring are these sheer afternoon gowns of chiffon and laces. Gracious things . . . slim of line and elegantly simple as to design. Crepes and Georgettes in becoming styles. A single ornamental brooch of rhinestone, colored stones or crystal after the manner of Chanel. Pleated skirts that add slimness. A bit of tucking or shirring that makes self-trimming. Lovely gowns depending on cut and beautiful fabric for charm.

Waistlines Reappear

Dresses show a tendency to approximate the natural waistline. Hemlines are uneven . . . usually with a scalloped effect. Some of the sheer models are two-piece style. The soft colors . . . beiges, blues (to make blue eyes blue-er), greens and smart navy and black.

Gowns, 29.75 to $89

BOMB HOME OF 4TH CHICAGO POLITICIAN

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

Low-Browed Morons Not New in the Human Family

SEARCH FOR VANISHED MINISTER PROVES VAIN

TARENTUM HUNT GIVES NO CLUE

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Search for the Rev. H. C. Calhoun, 45, Free Methodist minister of Freeport, who mysteriously disappeared on Saturday, was continued today, but not a single clue to aid in tracing his whereabouuts was found.

The minister, leaving Tarentum Saturday afternoon by automobile for Sarver, near here, failed to appear at Sarver. Search for him along the highway and in adjacent territory between the two towns was unavailing. The district between Tarentum and Sarver was to be gone over again today. Meanwhile police authorities throughout Western Pennsylvania have been requested to seek the missing man.

The pastor's wife and daughter said they were at a loss to explain his disappearance. An unsigned note reading, "I am going away," was found at the Calhoun home, but the note has not been identified by the wife and daughter as being in the pastor's handwriting. They are undecided.

BOMB HOME OF 4TH CHICAGO POLITICIAN

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—The drive to rid Chicago of bombing terrorists was pushed with renewed vigor today following an attack last night on the home of Lawrence Cuneo, secretary to State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

Cuneo, a brother-in-law of the state's attorney, is the fourth political figure to become a target for bombers within the past month.

Other officials whose homes were bombed are City Comptroller Charles C. Fitzmorris, Dr. William H. Reid and Municipal Judge John A. Sbarbaro, all actively identified with the political organization of Mayor William Hale Thompson and State's Attorney Crowe.

As in the other three explosions, no one was injured, but considerable property damage was done.

"They're trying to bomb me out of politics," said State's Attorney Crowe, when he learned of the attack on the home of his relative and secretary. Crowe then announced that he would pay $10,000 and grant immunity to anyone who would furnish information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bombers.

"I'm convinced these bombings are purely political," said Crowe. "The fellow who tossed the Cuneo bomb probably got two or three hundred dollars for the job. Well, I'll give him $10,000 and grant him complete immunity if he tells who hired him."

MAN NO BARGAIN, IS CO-EDS' VIEW

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"This for you," says the pretty co-ed to the handsome man as she snaps her fingers and buries her face in a big forbidding-looking volume of something-or-other.

Anyway, that is what Dean Sophonisba Preston of the University of Chicago says her co-eds do. She didn't say it in so many words, but like this:

"The men of the university are of little or no importance to the co-ed today. Co-eds go places, but are more interested in the places than the men they may be with."

DEAN AMOS.

DEAN GREEN.

Whether local co-eds like to go places, see people and do things is usually pretty difficult to find out when one goes to a dean of women. For deans do not feel as though they should talk about personal affairs. However, Mary Watson Green, dean of women at Carnegie Tech, was very gracious and explained earnestly:

"You see, there are two classes of co-eds. The kind that are serious and have a definite goal before them, and the ones who think a great deal about their social life. But I have no complaint at Carnegie. Honestly and frankly, I think it is too bad that people are so ready to make a co-ed a sensation. For every co-ed in the limelight, there are thousands of earnest hard-working students hungry for an education so that they may better themselves."

Fossils of Men or Apes Half A Million Years Old Are Found

In the chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," published in The Sun-Telegraph yesterday, it was related that from first to last the body of man never ceases to change. Also that actual cases of persons more than 100 years old being alive are almost unknown. Why walking is more restful than standing made an interesting recital.

Likeness of Our Ape Cousins to Us

CHAPTER X.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

UNLESS well protected, or in rainless Peru or Egypt, or in dry caves, or the cold storage of Arctic ice, or in oil, wax, or amber, the body soon yields to the bacteria of decay or to the teeth of wolves and hyenas. For bone or other tissue to be replaced by mineral whereby it petrifies or "fossilizes," many conditions must be right. The wiser the animal, the less likelihood of its being caught in quicksands or engulfed by the gravel and silt of floods. Primitive man was as little enamored as we are of being buried alive.

Fossil remains of the famous Cro-Magnon man have been found in Wales, and especially in France. Possibly earth never saw finer built human beings. His brain was 15 per cent larger than ours, his stature taller than any living race by two inches. He was clean-limbed, lithe and swift. He had a good chin, thick and strong jaws. His head was long, his face broad. He buried his dead. He was an artist and an artisan. He lived about 25,000 years ago. Did he become an ordinary European, or did he disappear? No one knows.

Beyond Cro-Magnon, our forebears rather run to brutish casts. Grimaldi man was of the Negroid type. Neanderthal man had a huge head, chipped flint, and buried his dead. He is set down at 50,000 B. C., and left no known heirs. He is the first known cave-man.

The Champion Fossil

The jaw of Heidelberg man fits a gorilla, but the teeth are ours. He is possibly 400,000 years old. Piltdown man is possibly a hundred thousand years older. Some think he was an ape. Some say he was the first Englishman. We have reached a point in time where no one knows who's who.

The champion fossil is Pithecanthropus erectus (ape-man erect), discovered by Dubois in Java in 1891. He is certainly a half-million years old; some say a million. He is more pithecoid than any known human being, more anthropoid than any known ape. He was as erect and almost as tall as the average European. He had definitely left the "well-ventilated arboreal tenements." He was a low-browed moron—and may be represented in the living flesh. But whether he was of the direct line that led to man, or only of a line that ended with himself, is not yet definitely known. It is enormously significant that, after a debate lasting more than a quarter of a century, the biologists of the world cannot decide whether Pithecanthropus erectus belongs to the first or the second of the earth's First Families. That makes him a pretty good link that is no longer missing.

Our Ape Cousins

To import monkeys for their sex glands is ghastly business, perhaps the lowest that has engaged the cupidity and lust of man, but to shoot down simians as we do mad dogs or boys in uniform is a crime. The four anthropoid apes are our next-of-kin-living; they should be respected as cousins and not exterminated as vermin or Indians.

Man was never a gorilla, a chimpanzee, an orang, or a gibbon. No biologist ever made such a claim. Whether these apes could have developed into human beings is a different story. They have the makings—all the parts. If we knew how heredity works and could control variation, we might breed from an ape a being that could dig a ditch, play the piano, talk English and sing the "Messiah." We can teach them to smoke cigarets, chew tobacco, drink beer, wear clothes and eat with a knife and fork. We do not yet know the limit of their capacity to learn human ways.

Much Like Humans

Why do zoologists put these four apes so close behind us that we can feel their breath and they can catch our diseases? Because they are Anthropoid. Nothing has yet surpassed them in the race to become human. Their anatomy, embryology, histology, morphology, paleontology, physiology and psychology entitle them to second place in the Ancient and Honorable Order of Firsts.

They vary in their man-likeness, no one is in all ways closest to man. The orang looks like an Irishman; the gorilla is built like Jack Dempsey; the chimpanzee is the most angelic; the delicate gibbon has a lady-like skull and an upright carriage. The first three—the Great Apes—are the extremes of variation from a generalized ancestor. The gibbon varies least and to that extent is nearest the tree man climbed down when he decided to stand up and talk.

Skull Like Man's

Except in teeth, the young female gorilla is the most human. Her father is a brute in size and appearance. Only 5 feet high, he may weight over 400 pounds; mostly neck, chest and arms. If his legs were of human proportions he would stand over 7 feet high. His hands and feet are almost man's. His courage is unbounded, his strength prodigious. His humanoid skull has retracted behind enormous jaws and beneath powerful ridges required to support the muscles to work the jaws. He is the blackest Anthropoid, his skin is nearly black; his hair is coarse dark brown, whitening with age.

The chimpanzee, like the gorilla, lives in jungle Africa. Like the gorilla, he has a shuffle-along gait, swinging his body between his long crutch-like arms. He has the gorilla's proportions, but never the great bulk of chest. And so is more at home in the trees, where he builds his nest, as does the orang. The chimpanzee's skull is not unlike the one apeman erect tried on when turning into man—and gave up because it had too much jaw for the teeth required and not enough brain-box for ideas.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

IN A Sunday article we asked what had become of the old woman who used to sell apples on the morgue steps. This happened to be something that everyone but the writer knew about. Something like

SAY, THAT OLD WOMAN HAS BEEN DEAD FOR YEARS!

46 letters received, not counting breathless messengers, developed the fact that the poor old woman was murdered some years ago.

STILL we have a good alibi. It happened during those years when we were more concerned with such matters as professionalism in amateur sports and amateurism in professional sports and when we used to go for days at a time without reading the murder column.

"EVER since that time," writes Thomas Patterson, "a certain fellow has been emulating the hero of De Maupassant's 'Piece of String' by carelessly asserting his innocence."

"Apples are still sold there and have been continuously," adds this letter. Well, we're sorry we ever mentioned it.

ANYTIME we grow despondent over a suspicion that no one reads this column we become mentally bolstered by making an error. The quick rush to show us how we are in error is always proof that not a few are on the alert to catch us up.

WALLACE R. ALLEN, publicity director of the Penn Theater, wishes to disagree with our statement that the movies in Pittsburgh sometimes short change the customers on the last show of the evening. Writes Mr. Allen:

"In all the de luxe theaters on Monday a time schedule is made and at no time, barring accidents, does this vary one minute. Speedometers are used in running the projection machines, time clocks are used in cueing the music to the split second, and thus, you can see, to run a picture fast would cause music to be all wrong, acts to be late for their time to go on, stage hands missing, etc.

"AS TO the newsreel by an actual canvass, men prefer newsreels to any other unit on our show, and you are at liberty at any time to stop in our lobby and stop a man to ask him about this."

WE STILL maintain, however, that we recently went to a movie show, waited more than a half hour for a seat, and saw only the feature picture. We vote for the newsreels, too, our complaint in this connection being aimed at the newsreels which show contestants in yacht races tuning up in trial trips—which we still maintain is very uninteresting.. No one is going to change us about that, either. We don't know anything about yacht races, wouldn't attend one on a bet and, consequently, when the pictures are shown, we direct our attention to (a) the organist; (b) the makeup of the proscenium arch; (c) the gargoyles, if any; (d) the soft and voluptuous lighting effects of the movie houses.

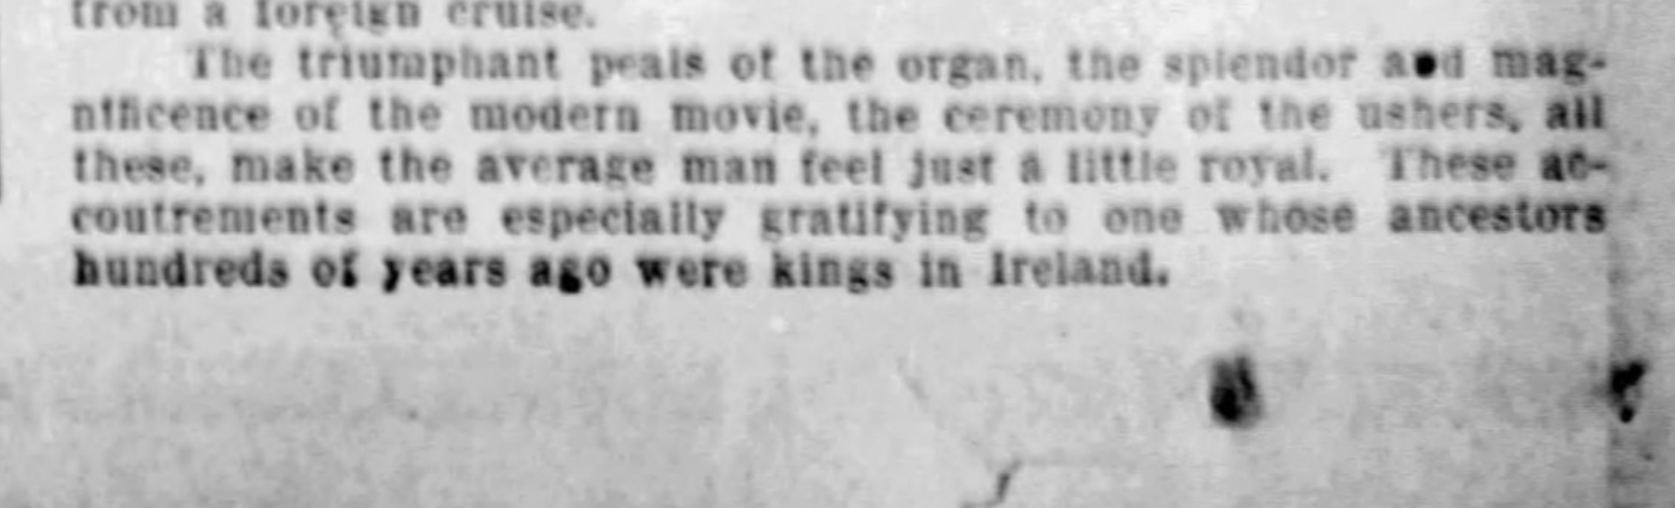
ONE pleasant thing about the movies nowadays is the way they have trained the highly-tailored ushers to treat patrons as personages. We seldom go into the big de luxe houses without getting the impression, as the ushers stand at attention and then salute, that we are an admiral just returning to home waters from a foreign cruise.



THIS WAY SIR!

The triumphant peals of the organ, the splendor and magnificence of the modern movie, the ceremony of the ushers, all these, make the average man feel just a little royal. These accoutrements are especially gratifying to one whose ancestors hundreds of years ago were kings in Ireland.

MONEY LOVE by BEATRICE BURTON

Lily Goes to See Pat And Fights With The Ertz Girl

LOOKING as gay as a red bird in the rainy gray day, she started out at 4 o'clock for the humble, crowded part of town where Pat lived.

It was 5 when she reached Roy Jetterson's garage, where the La France piston ring was still advertised on cardboard signs all over the painted brick walls.

But neither Roy nor Pat was there. "Probably over at the shop gittin' things cleaned up down there," suggested the mechanic who was in charge, and over to the shop where the ring had been manufactured, went Lily.

She was shocked when she saw it, with its soot-blackened walls, its lopsided roof, and the mud that was all around it.

So this was the sad and gloomy place where Pat had been working at night for months, after he had finished his day's work at the garage! She could have groaned at the sight of it. . . . No wonder he had wanted a hot bath the minute he stepped into the house after hours in a place like this! No wonder he had wanted a decent meal and a clean, quiet, cheerful wife!

No wonder he was out of patience on those nights when he did come home early only to find his flat dark and cheerless and his wife absent—driving around with Staley Drummond and making her plans to get away from the little flat and from him and from his poverty!

"Oh, I wasn't very nice to him, was I?" Lily asked herself, as she crossed the muddy yard and rapped on the weather-beaten wooden door of the ramshackle building.

After a long time—three or four minutes—there was a sound of slow, dragging footsteps within, and a man pulled open the door. He was a very old man in a ragged brown sweater, a grease-stained old hat and dirty overalls. A dirty yellow dog was at his heels, and it growled at Lily.

"Is Mr. France here?" she asked, wishing that the man would hold the dog by its old leather collar. It really was a mean-looking dog.

Mr. France was not there, the old man told her, while the dog circled around her, his nose close to her heels.

"Seems like he said him and Mr. Jetterson was going up to Mr. Jetterson's for supper," he said. "Anyway, they drove off just a while afore you come up. Come here, Pat!"

Lily stared at him in surprise, and saw that he was calling the old yellow dog. The dog's name was Pat!

"Did you name that beast after Mr. France?" she asked, and he nodded his head solemnly.

"That's Mr. Pat's dog," he said. "Keeps him company down here when he's alone, he says. Sometimes when he works late, I get the evenin' off with my old woman. Yes, this is Mr. Pat's dog."

There was a queer lump in Lily's throat as she slushed through the mud of the yard on her way back to the street. . . . Somehow the picture of Pat, in his old overalls, working in this God-forsaken place until all hours of the night, made her want to cry.

"He didn't have anything really nice in his life but his love for me and mine for him," she thought, realizing what some women never realize—that man's home very often is the only bright spot in his hard-working life, and the peace that he finds there the only peace that he finds anywhere.

There were lights in the Jettersons' house when Lily got to it about 6 o'clock. The vulgar but delicious smell of fried onions hung in the cool air, and from within came the sound of an electric piano playing "When Day Is Done."

She rang the bell.

It was opened almost instantly by Pat—not the sad and dejected Pat she had been thinking of—but a very gay and handsome Pat who had been singing "When Day Is Done" just before he opened the door.

He peered out into the darkness, and then stepped back as he saw who stood there.

"It's just your wife," Lily said curtly to him, stepping into the hall. From the kitchen at the far end came the fall and rise of Roy and Sadye's voices as they argued about the best way of frying onions—dipped in a batter first or simply dropped into hot fat without being covered with batter.

There was not a sound from the living room at the left of the hall. The piano had stopped half-finished, with the melody of "When Day Is Done."

As Lily stood facing Pat in the hall ay the curtains in the doorway parted and Elizabeth Ertz came out and stood beside him. She stood very close to him, with one of her hands on his arms as if he belonged to her and she to him.

The sight maddened Lily.

She looked from her to Pat. "I came to see you—to tell you I was sorry because your piston ring flopped," she said bitterly. "But I guess you don't need sympathy. You seem to have plenty of it already."

He nodded indifferently, as if what she said did not matter much to him. Lily saw the nurse's hand tighten on his arm.

And then she lost her temper. She flung herself forward and pulled The Ertz away from Pat. She held her by both arms and shook her as if she had been a rag doll instead of a woman almost as big as herself.

"And—and you, you common little vamp!" she cried through set teeth, "you keep your hands off my husband as long as he IS my husband. Do you hear me? Or I'll drag you both through the nastiest divorce trial that a woman's ever been dragged through. You keep away from him!"

She never had known such anger as the anger that surged through her now like fire in her veins.

CHAPTER LVIII.

IF Mrs. Cyrus Lexington had been told that her daughter, Lily, could claw at another woman and shake her and scream at her like a fishwife, she never would have believed it.

She would have said "Impossible!" Hadn't she brought Lily up to be a lady? Hadn't she sent her to the very best day schools? Hadn't she been taught to be polite and well bred? She certainly had!

And if anyone had told Staley Drummond that the lovely, flower-like girl he was going to marry just as soon as she was free from her unfortunate marriage, could behave as Lily was behaving, he would not have believed it, either.

Lily, herself, could scarcely believe that she was doing what she was doing—shaking The Ertz until her teeth fairly rattled, and shrieking at her to let Pat alone or she'd know the reason why!

"This is a terrible thing to do," she thought 'way down deep in her mind, under the rage and the jealousy that were shaking her just as she was shaking the little nurse.

And then, in the midst of her fury, she felt Pat's hands on her, and his touch was like magic. Instantly [illegible] anger and madness went [illegible] and she turned to him [illegible] her face against his shi[illegible] stayed there, trembling a[illegible], clinging to him until [illegible] her very gently away [illegible].

She [illegible] that Sadye and Roy J[illegible] had come into the hall [illegible] the dining room, and [illegible] in the doorway, takin[illegible] scene with wide-open [illegible] they might have taken in an exciting motion picture. Sadye was chewing something that she had in her mouth and there was grease on her chin. Sadye always "tasted" when she was cooking.

Pat's eyes went from her to them, and then back to her and Elizabeth Ertz. "Have you lost your mind, Lily?" he asked. "You'd no right to touch her. She's never done a thing to you."

The nurse had not said a word, but she was breathing hard, as if she had been running a race, and for once her hair was rough and tumbled where Lily had shaken it loose from its pins. Her white uniform was rumpled, and from it came a faint smell that was like the odor of the hospitals, where she spent so much of her time.

Lily giggled through her tears. "How can you like a girl who uses antiseptics for perfume?" she asked, looking up at Pat with her lovely eyes wide and wet, but crinkled with laughter at the corners.

Pat's lips tightened and his face became more white and grim than it had been a second before. "Let's not talk all this over right now," he said quietly, and then he turned to Roy, so that Lily had a swift look at his profile. It seemed more sharply etched than it had been eight or nine weeks ago. He was thinner, and he looked older, somehow, in spite of his youth and his rugged health and his vitality and "pep."

"Roy, could I borrow your car to run Lily home?" he asked, and without a word, Roy nodded.

Beside him, Sadye, in her bungalow apron, and holding a yellow mixing bowl and spoon to her ample bosom, looked Lily up and down with great disfavor in her eyes. She seemed to want Lily to know how thoroughly she disliked her at that moment.

"Never had a scene like that in MY house before," Lily heard her say to The Ertz as she followed Pat out of the house into the early spring darkness.

Sadye's automobile was standing in front of the house—the one that Roy had bought for her in the days when the La France piston ring had looked like a sure-fire success to him and Pat.

"Don't you take her home in my car!" Sadye called softly from the doorway, as the two went down the steps. "That woman can't ride in my car, Pat!"

Behind it a few feet stood Roy's own car, and as Pat started down the sidewalk towards it, Lily pulled him back. "I won't ride in either of their cars," she declared. "You take me to a drug store or some place where I can telephone Staley. He'll come and get me."

She said that to hurt Pat. But if it did hurt him, he gave no sign of it. "All right," he answered, indifferently, and swung around his heel. "Come along."

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

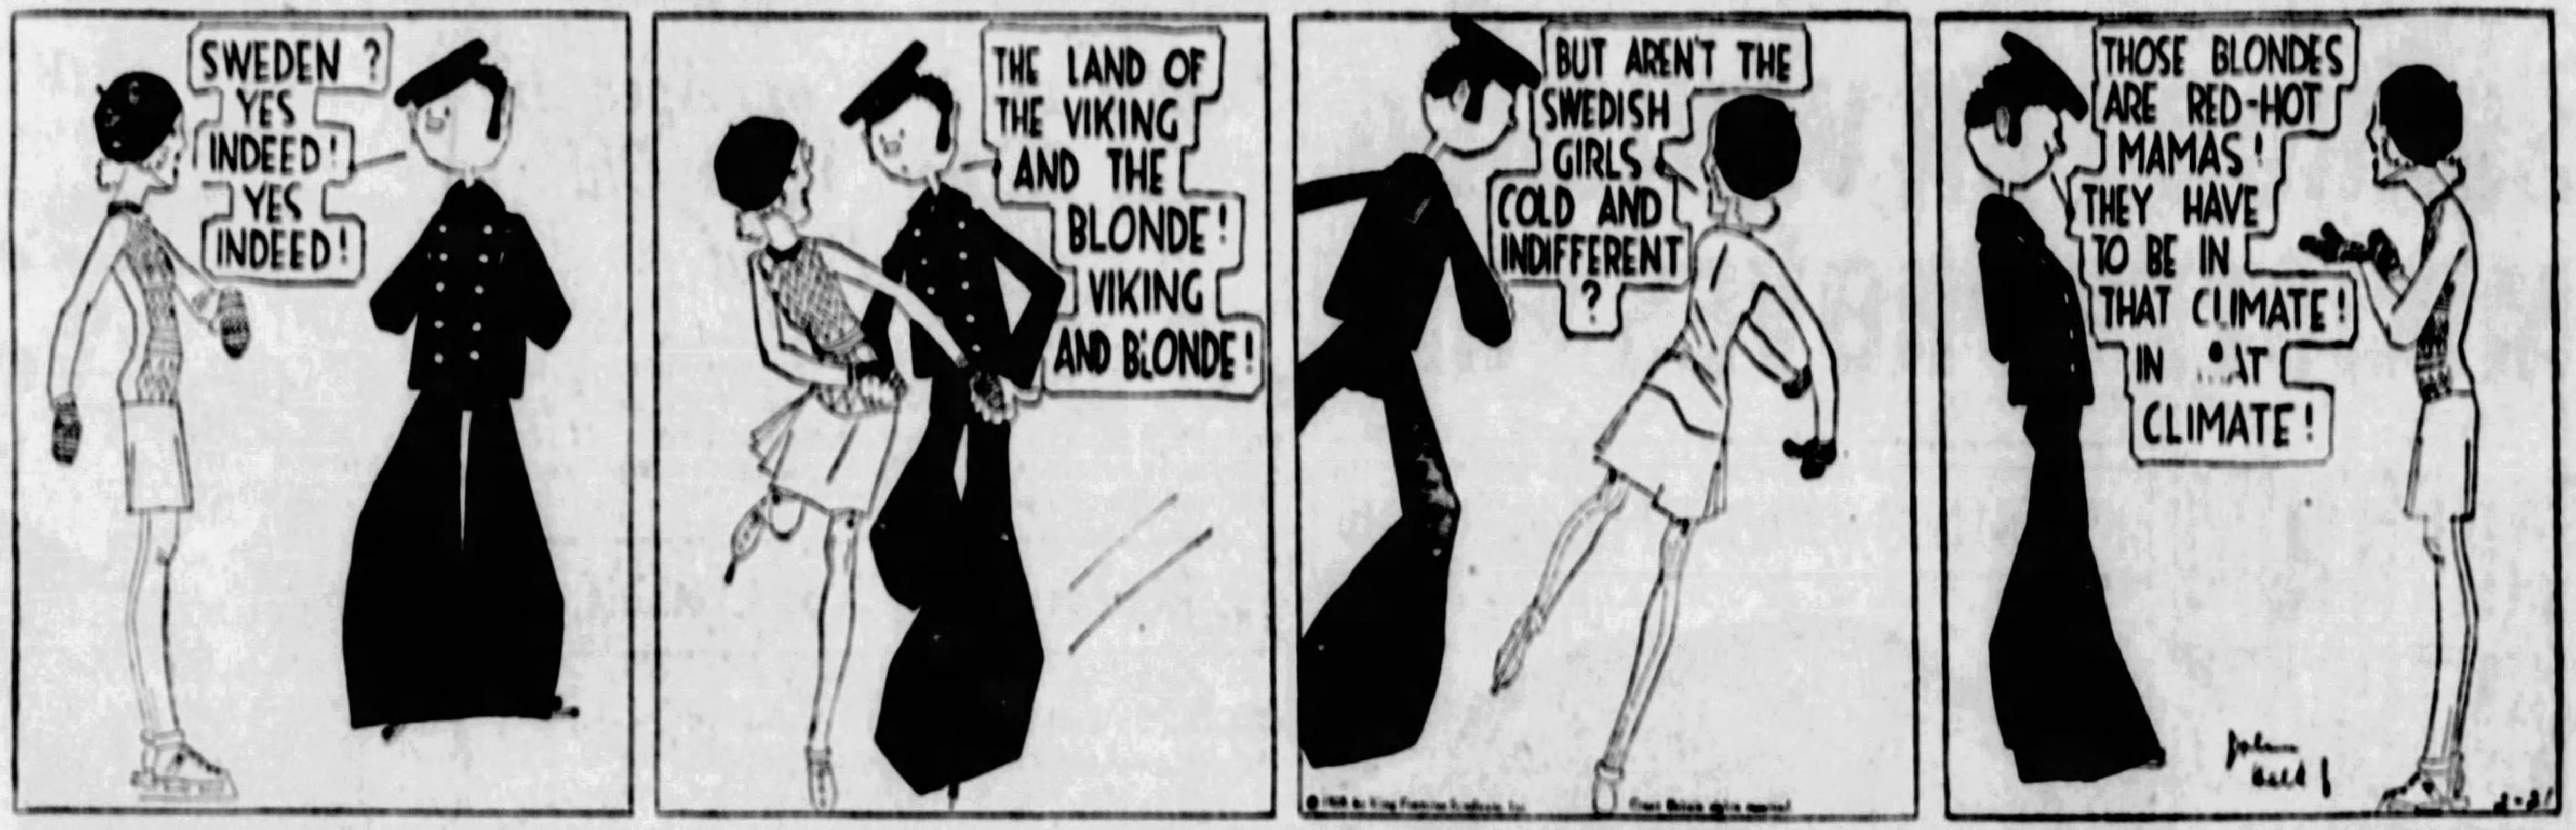
Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.



SWEDEN? YES INDEED! YES INDEED!
THE LAND OF THE VIKING AND THE BLONDE! VIKING AND BLONDE!
BUT AREN'T THE SWEDISH GIRLS COLD AND INDIFFERENT?
THOSE BLONDES ARE RED-HOT MAMAS! THEY HAVE TO BE IN THAT CLIMATE! IN THAT CLIMATE!
John Held Jr.

"My dear, I'm simply GURgitating with GLEE at this point! I mean I'm ACtually WHIFFling and BURBling with JOY, no less, because I went SKAting the other afternoon with ARab's BROTHer, my dear, and he SKATES diVINEly! I mean I was HONestly TOO imPRESSED because he's so AWfully GRACEful, sort of. I mean it's ACtually the POetry of eMOtion or something when you SKATE madly ROUND with him, my dear, because I mean he's PERfectly at HOME on the ICE, sort of, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, it was SIMply SWELL because we had the most inTRIguing converSAtion about SWEden, my dear, because I mean that's ONE country I've ALways been FRIGHTfully inTRIGUED about and had a treMENdous YEN to VISit and all, because they have the ODdest LANGuage, sort of. I mean they pronounce LOADS of things like WE do, sort of, because f'r instance in SWEden they cll FLIVers 'FJORDS' or something—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, I was AWfully INT'rested sort of in finding OUT about what the GIRLS were like because I mean I've ALways had the iDEA that those SCANdalNAvian girls were all sort of COLD and inDIF'rent, but, my dear, ARab's BROTHer says they're just inDIF'rent to the COLD!"

Dicky Graham Thinks the Farmhouse Dinner Company Is Strangely Assorted

AT Dicky's knock upon the door, I hastily wiped my eyes, and dashed on some powder to conceal the traces of the tears which had come to them at the memories connected with my jade and silver necklace, a former gift of his. So hurried was I that my manipulation of the powder was awkward, and Dicky's lips widened into a grin as I opened the door for him.

"What's the big idea?" he asked. "Getting ready to write a testimonial for your favorite cosmetic? You've sure put it on thick enough."

Involuntarily I turned my head and looked at my face in the mirror, then with a little exclamation of dismay toned down the "caricature of a face," which I had presented to Dicky. I was thankful, nevertheless, for the incident which had prevented my husband from realizing my softened mood toward him. And yet, with feminine inconsistency, I found myself wishing that I had not used the powder, that I had let him see my tear-stained cheeks.

But his next question effectually banished all my tremors and made my heart feel as if it had been manufactured out of concrete.

"Is Miss Lincoln coming?" he asked, and the eagerness in his tone made it exceedingly difficult for me to keep coldness and rancor out of my own voice. But I managed a carelessly pleasant answer.

"Oh yes, indeed. She's very enthusiastic about the proposition. You're quite a psychologist, do you realize it? Also, a prophet. When she heard that Mr. Veritzen was to be one of the guests, she fairly beamed."

"Why didn't you tell the truth for a change and say the guest?" retorted Dicky and I saw with a secret thrill of gratified vanity that the very mention of the great producer's name affected his temper unpleasantly. It went far toward appeasing the resentment I had felt at his enthusiasm over Eleanor Lincoln's acceptance of my dinner invitation.

"Because he isn't," I said nonchalantly. "When Lillian and Marion come home to the farmhouse for the summer, they are distinctly the guests of honor. All the others are—"

"Also rans?" Dicky filled in, grinning, as I hesitated. "How I'd like to have old P. V. hear you say that! The old Douglas had nothing on him for the belief that where he sits is the head of the table."

I saw that my disclaimer had restored him to the unusual good humor which had been his upon his entrance, and discreetly made no comment upon his last little speech. If I wished the dinner to be a success, I knew that it was most vital to have Dicky in amiable mood.

"How many also rans have you?" Dicky asked, and I thankfully welcomed the chance of getting away from any discussion of Philip Veritzen's foibles.

"I decline to give them that horrid name," I said with carefully assumed pettishness, "but I'll run over the dinner list for you. Your mother, Katherine, Mary, you and I, of the family, Lillian and Marion, the two Veritzens, father and son, Miss Lincoln and a Mr. Jackson, who was at The Larches when I called there, and whom I could not very well get out of inviting."

Dicky had busied himself in checking off the names, and as soon as I had finished, he threw up his hands with a gesture of dismay.

"Four men and seven women!" he exclaimed. "Of all the ridiculous propositions."

"I know it," I said ruefully, although his patent disapproval irritated me. "But this is a strictly informal affair, to which through no one's fault, I have been compelled to invite outsiders. But they will simply have to make the best of it, as will we."

"Oh! it's nothing in my young life," Dicky said carelessly. "It's only that Miss Lincoln and Phil Veritzen are used to the flossy stunts, but I think you're sensible in not trying to pull one. But who is Mr. Jackson?"

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburghers Time Visit to Gotham in Order to Attend National Civic Welfare Show

TWO of our local Junior League girls who are going to be in New York within the next few days are planning to be at the Barbizon Hotel there some time during the week to attend the Civic Welfare Show which is being conducted by the league. They are Forsyth Patterson, of Sewickley, who is sailing shortly for a couple of months' trip abroad, and Marjorie Kimball, daughter of the G. Cooke Kimballs, of Beechwood boulevard. Marjorie is expecting to leave on Thursday to be in New York for about a month, most of the time as the guest of her grandmother. Augusta Leovy, president of the Pittsburgh league, has decided not to go on for the exhibit.

This show, which opens today, should be of more than just common interest. It is the first time in which the civic welfare projects of each of the 97 leagues in the United States and Canada has been exhibited, and it is to be done both through models and by examples of original work either by Junior League members or under their direction. These will touch on all of the various angles of the league's work, such as baby homes, clinics, occupational therapy work, Americanization work among the foreign born, education of American-born illiterate whites, and co-operation in constructive state projects.

MISS GERTRUDE GOEDDEL

20TH CENTURY CLUB HEARS JOHN ERSKINE

"Everybody creates myths, but most of them die on the spot. Any mother who has a remarkable child and breaks the news to a visitor is creating a myth, and one that dies on the spot."

So said John Erskine, famous author and lecturer, when he came to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning to talk about Helen of Troy, Galahad, Adam and Eve and a few others around whom he has written his books and for whom he has named them. Dr. Erskine spoke of the many legends concerning Helen and said he had told his story much as if he had had it from the neighbors. The literal-minded scholar points out the contradictions in myths, he said, and thus loses the poetry. Helen is in exaggerated form the spoiled child of all time. He, himself, has conferred brains on her and he declared she hadn't deserved so much.

One of the largest audiences of the season turned out to hear the address, which was full of that special brand of humor which Erskine readers know so well. While recognizing weakness and evil in his characters, Dr. Erskine says he has tried to make allowance for circumstances and combinations of moral conduct that confronted the individuals. All great men have had their weakness, he pointed out citing David, Jacob and Peter.

A change is announced in the program for the February 27 meeting of the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club. The day will be in charge of the home department, with Mrs. F. C. Cooper directing. Mrs. Frederick B. Chalfant, who founded the Better Magazines Council of Allegheny County, will speak on the workings of that body. John C. Hiteshew, Sewickley borough manager, will conduct a 15-minute forum on borough affairs and to conclude there will be a showing of travel pictures taken by Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison and her family in Egypt last year and of the Sewickley Valley Hunt Club taken on Armistice Day. Miss Maude Sherer's reading of "Capon Sacchi," which she gave in lovely Renaissance costume, was greatly enjoyed by a large and enthusiastic audience yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday was designated as "patriot's day" with the Pittsburgh Literary and Musical Club and for the program the members had papers on "Fascism—Its Ideals," "Garibaldi and Mussolini," "Who Opposes Mussolini?" and a reading of the Fascist hymn and 10 commandments, Mrs. E. W. Orrison, Miss Mame Stoner and Mrs. Harry Owens giving the papers and Miss Marjorie Bell Pyter, the reading. Mrs. Samuel Milliken, accompanied by Mrs. Gertrude Robinson Dodds, sang and Mrs. Dodds also gave piano numbers. Tea with appointments in red, white and blue followed the program.

Mme. Angelini, widow of the pastor of the Waldensian Church and founder of the Waldensian School in Rome, addressed the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club yesterday afternoon and had some interesting first-hand things to tell the members about conditions in Italy. Mussolini is very much misunderstood in this country and is greatly beloved by his own countrymen, she said. A debate on immigration, whether or not it should be restricted, was the regular program feature, Mrs. F. R. Elder taking the affirmative and Mrs. R. M. Dibble the negative side of the argument, on which no decision was given. Mrs. A. C. Pollock was appointed chairman of the nominating committee, and the committee chosen includes Mrs. Dean Harvey, Mrs. John G. Chalfant, Mrs. H. C. Loudenbeck and Mrs. H. E. Carmack. At the tea table were seated Mrs. H. D. Hasson and Mrs. W. A. Forester, the aides, including the juniors.

A Frances Willard memorial meeting was held today by the Sterrett Women's Christian Temperance Union in the Community House, Union avenue, North Side. Mrs. Amelia Campbell conducted the song service and Mrs. J. C. Crawford was the speaker.

Mrs. W. H. Phillips of Hazel drive, entertained the drama department of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club this afternoon. Elmer Kenyon, president of the Pittsburgh Center of the Drama League, was the speaker. His subject: "Current Plays."

In introducing the program of which she was chairman for the Tourists yesterday, Mrs. W. O. Schoonover told how George Washington had spent some of his own birthday anniversaries. It was a special George Washington program which only a small group of the members heard in the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. J. Charles Wilson was in charge and apologized in humorous fashion for putting herself on the program. No one would ever think of objecting to such an arrangement, however, for Mrs. Wilson's readings are always distinctly worth while. With Mrs. W. H. Patterson playing appropriate piano accompaniments, Mrs. Wilson read Theodosia Garrison's "Monseigneur Plays," a T. A. Daly dialect poem about Washington and a beautiful tribute to the flag.

Mrs. M. E. Golding, the club president, gave a chronology of the great events and births which have taken place in February in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, a paper in which she injected a great deal of interest. Mrs. D. N. Bulford's informal talk on the flag, its making, its changes and what it means to the women who live under it, concluded the afternoon.

Mrs. Golding announced that the next meeting will be held in Mrs. Wilson's home, Neville street, a change from the year book.

MAN NO BARGAIN, IS CO-ED'S VIEW

difficult to say whether the local co-eds go out much with the college boys because here they do not live in dormitories, but are home girls, free to come and go when they please. This makes it more difficult to check up on their home life.

Dean Green believes it is quite natural that the co-eds would become acquainted with older men outside of school life. That is, with intellectual men. They would naturally be attracted toward the co-eds because they like to talk about deeper subjects than the average girl.

Dean Amos says there is a friendly minging of students at P. C. W., Tech and Pitt, and she believes a great deal of the social life of the girls is among themselves. There is a very friendly feeling between the three schools.

And Dean Amos says she is certain:

"Scholarship has improved remarkably among the girls in the last year, in fact in the last three years. Standards have never been as high, and there have never been so many girls trying to get into college. All seem to be in earnest and seem to have made up their minds that nothing is going to keep them from their goal."

Just what elements have tended toward the change for the better in student life neither Dean Green or Dean Amos could say. But they seemed to feel that it might be a change for the better in the entire modern generation.

And both regret very much that youth must battle so furiously all the while against public opinion and the willingness of the world to "make a mountain out of a mole hill" where the younger set is involved.

This for the last—because it is the best:

Several co-eds revealed they don't like to go out with college boys—"because they seem so babyish, my dear. Older men are so much more interesting, and don't take themselves so seriously."

PAID FOR MANUFACTURING, FREIGHT AND SELLING COSTS
EARNINGS 1¢

Swift & Company's Cattle Dollar

A thousand pound beef steer will yield on an average of 550 pounds of beef and 150 pounds of hide and other finished by-products.

Swift & Company, at its various packing plants, buys thousands of cattle each week, transforms them into beef and by-products, sells the beef to retail dealers and the by-products to various kinds of manufacturers to be worked up into forms which the consumer desires.

From every dollar which Swift & Company received in 1927 from sales of beef and by-products an average of 85 cents was paid to the producer of live stock for his animal; 14 cents was required to pay manufacturing, freight and selling costs, and one cent remained as earnings. Out of his 85 cents the farmer has to pay the cost of the animal and the expense of feeding and marketing before he makes any profit.

The story of beef is an interesting one. Something of this, as well as many other details of the packing industry, are told in the new Swift & Company Year Book for 1928.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.
U.S. Senator From New York

Foods That Are Valuable in Nourishing the Brain

A QUESTION frequently asked me is, what should we do, and what should we eat, in order to enrich the brain and keep it normal.

DR. COPELAND

Fish has always been considered a good "brain food." Is this an old superstition or does a fish diet possess some unusual benefit for the brain cells? This is a common question. There is a strongly founded tradition that fish food contains a high percentage of phosphorus, and on this account it is particularly valuable as a brain food.

Of course, phosphorus is a very important substance, and we must have an unfailing supply of this mineral. But fish contains no more phosphorus than other meat. I doubt exceedingly if the brain cells are more benefited by fish than they are by some other forms of flesh.

Of course there cannot be brain health unless there is general health. Unless the body is nourished and given the supply of minerals needed, the brain is not nourished, nor is it given the supply of minerals it requires.

I am a great believer in the use of fish as a part of the family diet. It is a matter of regret to me that fresh fish cannot be provided every day in the week for those who enjoy this article of food. It is unfortunate that fish eating is limited to the one day.

As time goes on and meat supplies are reduced, I have no doubt the waters of the earth will be called upon, and a good deal of our protein food will come from fish. But candor compels me to say that so far as the general physical welfare and brain action are concerned, fresh poultry will supply the brain food just as well as will fresh fish.

The digestibility and nourishing qualities of fish are beyond question. There is no foundation either for the popular idea that you are in constant danger of ptomaine poisoning or some other dreadful thing from eating fish. You cannot get these disturbances any quicker from fish than from any other food which has been permitted to become contaminated.

But there is no one food that will contribute in any special way to the upbuilding of the brain. The brain prospers when the body prospers.

Whenever the manner of living and of eating are such that the general physical welfare is promoted you can be sure that the brain is being nourished. It is the same blood and the same nourishment, no matter whether its brain or lungs, or liver. What is good for one part of the body is good for all.

Right living and right thinking go together.

Answers to Health Queries

M. C. Q.—What is the cause of hemorrhoids?

2—I am very nervous and troubled with dryness of the mouth. What would you advise for this condition?

A.—Usually due to sluggish elimination. Watch your diet, drink lots of water between meals and keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2. Your nervousness naturally affects your digestion, and this in turn would be responsible for the mouth condition. Watch your diet, keep the system clear and try to overcome the nervous condition. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M.B. Q.—My little boy is 2½ years old and weighs 40 pounds. Can I give him a small portion of meat once a day?

2. What do you advise as a laxative for a child of this age?

A.—Yes.

2.—If you give him the proper foods the child should not be constipated. Milk of magnesia is a mild laxative for children. For information regarding diet send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

M. T. Q.—Would you consider it harmful to eat only sour milk and coarse bread for two or three weeks in order to reduce weight?

2.—I am 20 years of age, 5 ft. 10 inches tall, what should I weigh?

3.—How much should a girl aged 6, 4 ft. 2 inches tall weigh, also a girl aged 9, 4 ft. 7 inches tall?

A.—Yes. Eat sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Exercise daily. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed, with regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.

2.—Should weigh about 150 pounds.

3.—They should weigh respectively about 53 and 72 pounds.

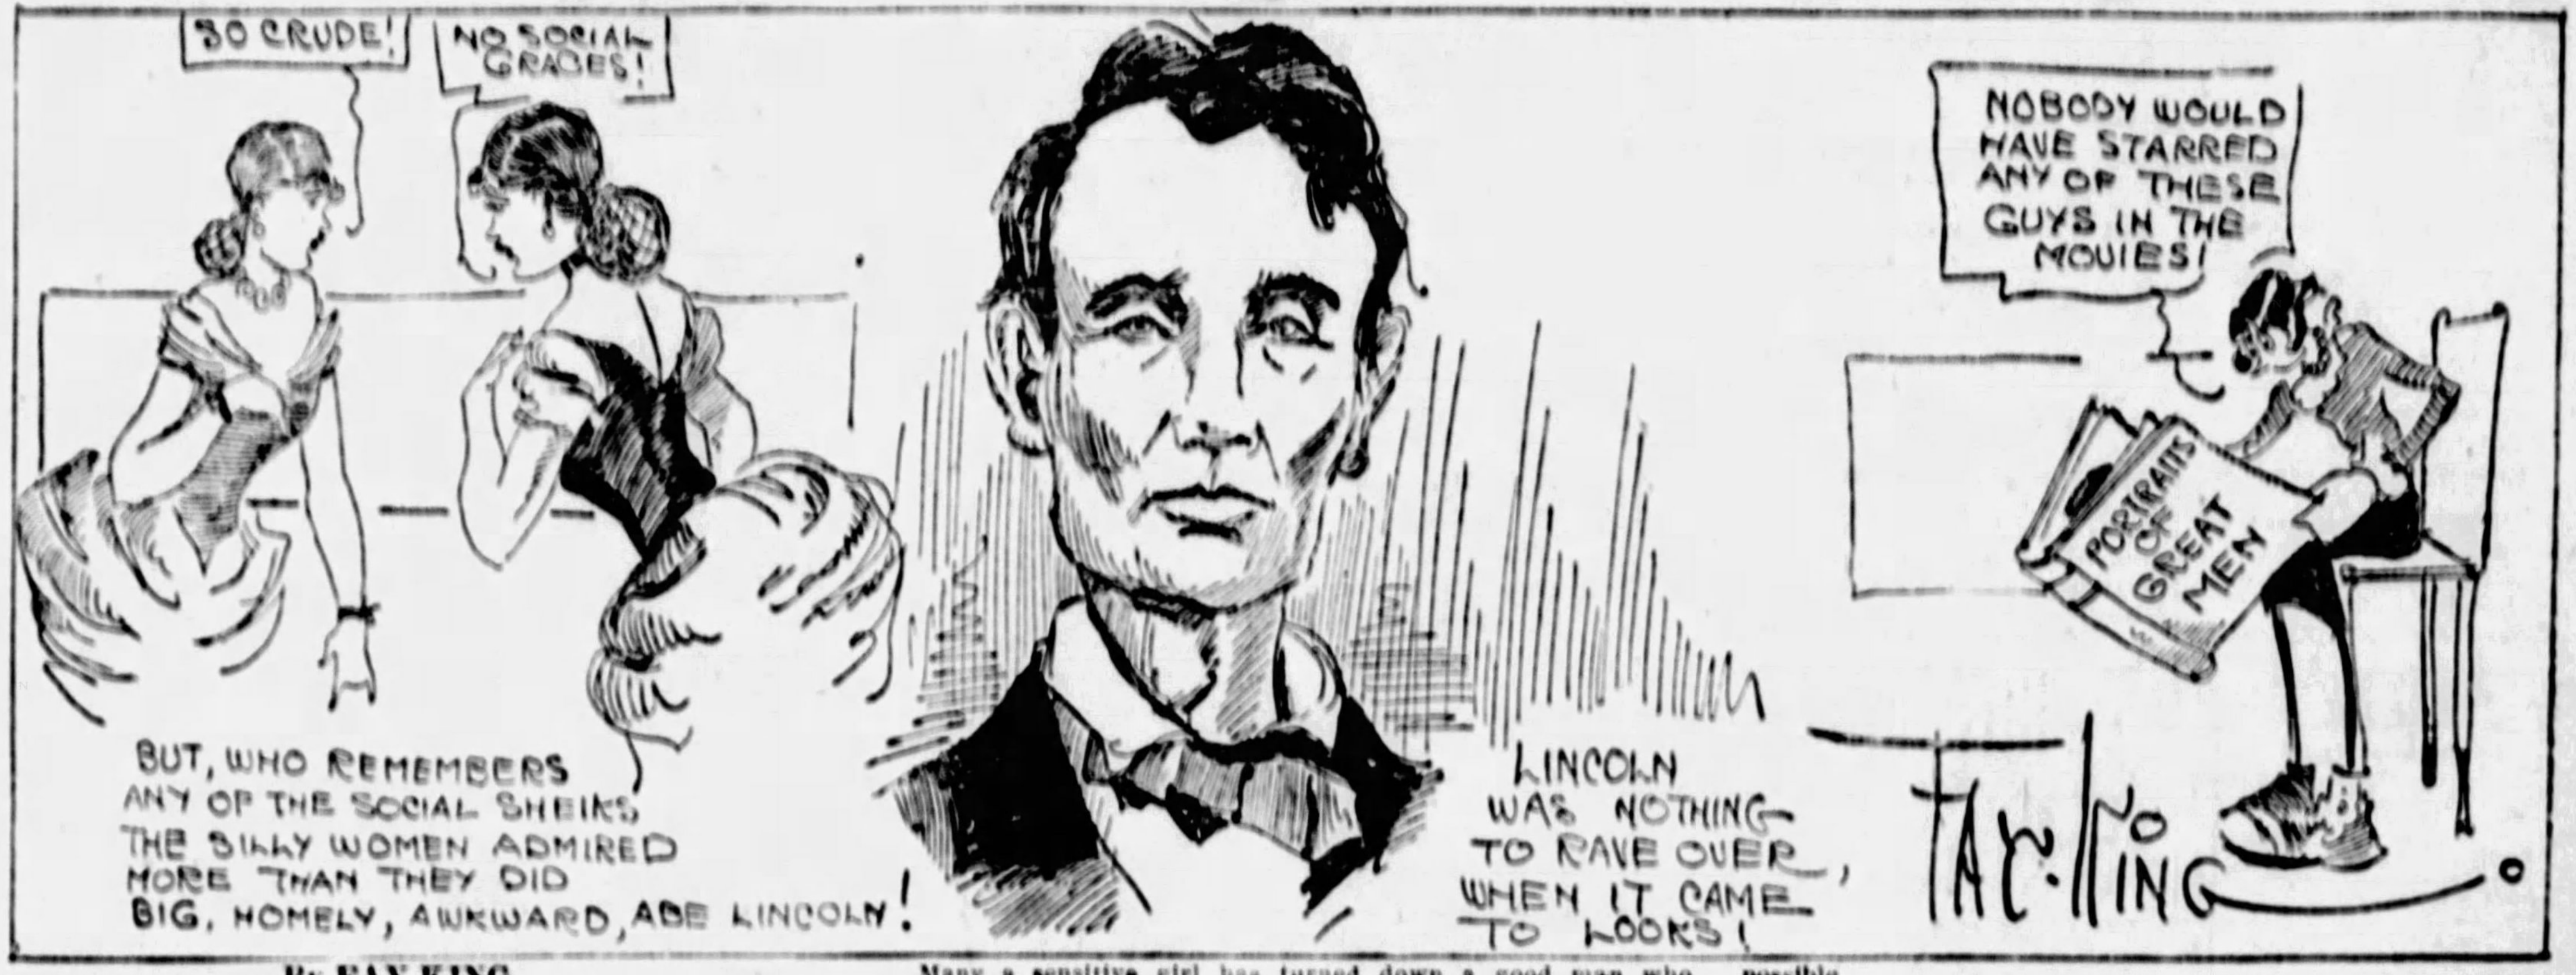
Adonis-Like Men Rarely Great, Fay King Finds



SO CRUDE!
NO SOCIAL GRACES!
BUT, WHO REMEMBERS ANY OF THE SOCIAL SHEIKS THE SILLY WOMEN ADMIRED MORE THAN THEY DID BIG, HOMELY, AWKWARD, ABE LINCOLN!
LINCOLN WAS NOTHING TO RAVE OVER, WHEN IT CAME TO LOOKS!
NOBODY WOULD HAVE STARRED ANY OF THESE GUYS IN THE MOVIES!
PORTRAITS OF GREAT MEN
FAY KING

By FAY KING

LINCOLN was no Adonis!

In that he is not alone!

Few really great men who have contributed to the real progress of the world and the real betterment of their fellow men have been sheiks in looks, dress and deportment!

Foolish women in all ages have fluttered around the current cake-eaters and tea-toddlers.

But who remembers any of those good looking parlor pets and ballroom Romeos?

Many a sensitive girl has turned down a good man who eventually became great because one of her sillier friends remarked that his nose was too big or his dancing was deplorable!

Some wives are continually comparing their worthy husbands with foppish film heroes, and find them sadly wanting in the art of good kissing, eye rolling, and heel clicking!

What they should do, is compare their husbands with the really great men who have made history. They will find their own husbands more according to the standards of real greatness!

Nobody would ever have mistaken the eminent and beloved Edison for any of the screen sheiks, which his invention made possible.

The memorable day that I met this great man in his famous workshop he was sadly in need of a shave and had a dented derby on backward.

Ford does not remind one of Valentino. The average board of directors could not get jobs heroing in films where features, not brains, register.

Brains, character and greatness do not aspire to excel beyond the superficial frivolities of social graces.

The man who excels at small tea table talk and thrills ladies with his languid glances, rarely excels at anything else.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WHY IS THE T. B. M. TIRED?

WHAT makes the Tired Business Man so TIRED?

He has nothing on his mind but his bald-spot! Everything is lifted from his shoulders except the padding!

* * *

There are always at least two or more women ready to relieve him of all the petty cares of life and act as his memory, his conscience, his prompter and his date-pad.

HELEN ROWLAND

There is his wife to remind him of his mother's birthday, his stenographer to remind him of his wife's birthday and his mother to remind him of his OWN birthday.

There is his wife to wake him in time to catch the eight-fifteen—there is his stenographer to hand him his finished mail and hustle him out of the office in time to catch the five-fifteen.

* * *

There is his wife to remind him to go by the tailor's on his way to the office—and there is his stenographer to remind him to lock up his cigars before he leaves and not to forget to mail his income-tax report.

* * *

There is his wife to warn him in the morning to be sure to see the dentist and have that cavity looked after—and there is his stenographer to remind him of his appointment with the dentist, and to call up the golf club and tell the boys it's all off for the afternoon.

* * *

There is his wife to keep up his reputation by going to church, his social standing by giving good parties, and his "culture" by dragging him to concerts and filling the house with highbrow books.

* * *

There is his wife to keep her eye on his stenographer—and his stenographer to scare off other women.

Oh yes, every man needs at least two women in his life. One for Sundays, holidays and evenings, one for week days—and many others for a CHANGE!

* * *

So WHAT makes the Tired Business man TIRED?

Novelty Ribbons

The sky is the limit as far as concerns the ingenuity of those designing novelty ribbons. The latest oddity is a ribbon banding whose pattern represents the skyline of New York woven in bright green, old gold and dull gray upon a deep purple sky.

Soda Is Bad For Indigestion

The very fact that soda will stop the pain of indigestion indicates that dangerous excess stomach acid is causing the trouble. And too much acid means a raw, sore stomach lining which is never corrected—and sometimes even aggravated by the use of soda.

If you have an acid stomach you need the special treatment obtainable only with Bi-nesia. This not only removes the acid which has caused the trouble, thus quickly stopping the pain—but it is the one remedy which heals and protects the stomach lining and gives full protection against chronic acidity and ulcers. For acid indigestion of any kind there's nothing safer—nothing which gives quicker relief. Get a handy pocket flask of 100 Bi-nesia tablets or a large bottle of powder of any druggist today and treat your indigestion the safe way. The cost is only 50 cents and satisfaction or your money back is guaranteed.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, February 22

UNDER the adverse astral influences of this day it may be difficult to make much progress.

With Saturn in square aspect with the moon, an obstructing configuration sustained by minor inimical aspects, the utmost efforts and patience will be required for any achievement. Yet new contracts may be offered for consideration and future acceptance.

As a holiday there may be disappointing features.

Those whose birthday it is are advised to push unflaggingly, with resolutions and persistency, accepting openings for future effort, when conditions may prove easier.

"Let patience have its perfect work."

A child born on this day may require definite training to meet and overcome tenacious obstacles in life. These may be met by persistency, diligence and application resolutely enforced.

Notable Nativity: George Washington, first President of the United States.

He broke a leg early last season and only recently was able to discard his crutches. He is keen for the new start which will be made shortly.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

WHEN The Sun-Telegraph last week published a photograph of one of the prized souvenirs of the Pittsburgh baseball club—a card showing the world's all-time major league record of six successive shutouts, registered by the Pirates in 1903—it recalled one of the greatest teams that this city has ever had, and one of the most remarkable achievements in the history of the big show.

Deacon Phillippe

The catchers were Harry Smith, Eddie Phelps, Fred Carisch and Buck Weaver.

The pitchers were Deacon Phillippe, Sam Leaver, Eddie Doheny, Brickyard Kennedy, Bucky Vail, Fred Falkenberg, Irving Wilhelm, Jack Pfiester, Lew Moren, Lafayette Winham, John Thompson and Doc Scanlon.

KITTY BRANSFIELD was at first base, Claude Ritchey at second, Tommy Leach at third and Honus Wagner at shortstop, with Otto Krueger as extra infielder.

Honus Lobert of Beltzhoover, later a star at Cincinnati and Philadelphia, was given his first big league infield tryout, but was used in only six games.

Krueger had been obtained from the St. Louis Nationals before the opening of the season in exchange for Infielder Jimmy Burke, now coach of the Cubs. It was the first trade made by Fred Clarke since he became manager of the Pittsburgh club in 1900.

The outfield showed Clarke in left, Clarence Beaumont in center and Jimmy Sebring in right.

BEYOND quesiton, that was quite a team, even if it did lose the world series to the Red Sox that year.

The latter defeat was due largely to the fact that Doheny had been sent to a sanitarium in September and that Leever had an ailing arm, leaving Phillippe to try to win the series practically single-handed.

And yet it was not as great a team as Pittsburgh had boasted one year earlier.

For in 1902, in addition to the

PERRY BATTLES SOUTH HILLS

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Of the four games in the two sections of the City Senior League carded for today, only one is of any great importance. In the event that Coach Chester A. Smith of Perry High School has been able to develop his proteges into a combination strong enough to topple the championship-contending South Hills High School quint on its own floor this afternoon, which would be one of the best upsets of the season, the divisional title would automatically go to Allegheny High School, at this writing deadlocked with the Tunnelites for the leadership. If South Hills keeps its head above water, however, a play-off with Allegheny will be necessary between now and next Tuesday, when the city series with Section 1 is carded to begin, unless the date is set back to meet the issue.

BOWLING and BILLIARDS

A SPECIAL train has been chartered to convey New York pin-topplers to the annual American Bowling Congress tournament at Kansas City. Of 20 New York teams entered, the Spartan and Dwyer teams are regarded as the strongest and most likely to win. The Gotham strike artists are to do their stuff in Kansas City on March 16 and 17.

Kinrey Matsuyama, diminutive Jap balk-liner, who spent two weeks here about a year ago, and who made the acquaintance of many Pittsburgh cueists while engaging them in exhibition matches, is trying his hand at the three-rail game. Opposing the great Willie Hoppe in a handicap match in New York recently, Matsuyama went down to defeat by a score of 300 to 266. Kinrey was playing for 270, and although he spurted and outscored Hoppe by 60-56 in the final block, he fell four billiards short of his goal. Each had a high run of eight.

One year ago, Matsuyama was a comparatively weak three-cushion performer, and many local players gave him handicaps of almost two to one. Billy Greenwood, now representing the Ellis parlors in the local three-cushion league, played Kinrey at 25-15 for the dinners one evening and amazed the Jap by clicking off 15 of his needed 25 billiards in the first two innings. Judging from his showing against Hoppe, Matsuyama has improved rapidly in the last 12 months.

The entry list for the fourteenth annual tournament of the Original Southern Duckpin Association is to be closed within a week and bowl-

BUSH CRACKS WHIP OVER BATTERYMEN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 21.—At 11 o'clock this morning, Donie Bush cracked his training whip and 21 Pirate pitchers and catchers snapped into action in the pretty ball park of Paso Robles. Before his athletes retired last night, Bush distributed uniforms, at the same time instructing his veterans and rookies to present themselves in the ball room of the hotel this morning where a meeting was held before the initial practice started.

Balmy spring sunshine greeted the Bushwhackers as they entered California. Ideal conditions prevailed on the trip up from Los Angeles, the vanguard of players reaching Paso Robles on schedule time.

Bush was hoping for a continuance of the fine weather as he and his players arose this morning. In view of the four days of traveling, the vets and rooks were exceptionally anxious to get a chance to disport themselves on the ball orchard. Although none of the players showed any signs of fatigue as a result of the trip, the feeling to be up and doing was a common one on the squad.

PLAN SHORT DRILL

The first workout did not last more than three hours. Throwing, running and chasing fungoes was the order of the day. It isn't likely that the pilot will allow the batterymen to indulge in batting practice for a time. Pitchers are prone to pick up bats like real hitters, but Donie will stress the more important parts of the slab profession, at least until the arrival of the second squad one week from today.

Lee Meadows and Johnny Gooch were the only absentees in camp, and this pair of veterans were given permission to come along with the second squad. Sickness in their families caused Lee and Johnny to ask for authority to absent themselves at this time.

Pitchers Remy Kremer, James Lindsey and George Peery, and Scouts Chic Fraser and Joe Devine were in Paso Robles last night

SOCCER NEWS

by TOM BIRKS

THE special meeting of soccerdom here Saturday night would have been a torrid affair had not President Brown had to leave on an early train. Matters were coming to a fever heat when President Fairfield called the session to a close.

Whether the national president got the data he expected remains to be seen. It was evident that the one thing he had in mind, was to get delegates to call another meeting and forget all about the suspensions and give the ex-president and secretary a chance to resign if their services were not required.

The national president seemed to have an idea that the delegates refused the resignation of the president, feeling that firing him would give them more satisfaction, or in other words demand their pound of flesh.

This is not so. It is true the resignation was not accepted, but it was not the delegates' fault. On the evening of February 3 the delegates did not have the voting power and knew it.

The national president has aged during the past two years and was in poor health while in Pittsburgh. Ill health probably means he will not run for re-election at the national convention in Milwaukee, June 30. It was only his iron will and love for the sport that prompted his trip to Pittsburgh, but in the course of his address to the gathering he deplored the constant bickerings in this district that usually finish with an appeal to the national office.

MEADOWS TO LEAVE WITH SECOND SQUAD

In a letter received at Pirate headquarters today from Leesburg, Fla., Pitcher Lee Meadows wrote that he would arrive here Thursday or Friday morning, ready to depart with the second division Friday night for the Pirates' training camp at Paso Robles, Cal. Meadows was excused from starting for the coast with the other battery men last Thursday on account of the illness of his son, Lee, Jr., who has since recovered.

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 21.—Always glad to see the Pirates, Paso Robles folks were out in large numbers to greet their favorite ball players when the train pulled into the little station yesterday.

CHAUFF ASTEN, Pirate trainer, did a quick first-aid job on the Southern Pacific fireman who toiled on the engine which hauled the Buccos to camp. Within 30 miles of the camp site, the fireman suffered a painful laceration on one of his fingers while at work in the cab. As soon as the train stopped he rushed back to the Pirate car and in less than five minutes Chauff had turned in a neat bandage, which enabled the railroader to go back to his task.

SAM DREYFUSS strained his eyes as he looked for Recruit Lindsey, who was supposed to climb aboard at Los Angeles.

"I can tell the ballplayers of the whole league when I see them in uniform, but they sometimes are hard to distinguish in their street clothes," said Sam.

FRED FUSSELL has all kinds of stuff and is the making of a fine southpaw, in the view of John Miljus, who was teammate of the new lefthander. Miljus and Fussell were bunkies under Wade Killefer at Seattle.

FUSSELL is not any larger than Wilbur Cooper, but he has plenty of power.

"His fast ball is deceiving," said Penn Avenue John, "it has a tendency to sneak up on the batter. Fred also has a dandy curve and he knows what it's all about when he is on the mound."

IT didn't take Burleigh Grimes long to get a suit pressed after the arrival. Mrs. Grimes is with Burleigh and when the two stepped into the dining room they caused a ripple of applause.

"I guess I got that way while I was with the Giants," said Grimes. "We had orders that knickers were allowed only at certain parts of the day. Also, were instructed to wear dark clothes at night."

What'll they do next?

Local Star Wins $145

L. GOLVASH, who scattered the maples for fair in the fourteenth annual tournament of the Southern Duckpin Association which closed here last week, took away $145 in prize money, according to the prize list given out by the association today.

Leagues and made a great record for himself.

Recently, however, the National League has named two new umpires for the 1928 season, Sherwood Magee, the former slugging outfielder of the National League, and Dolly Stark, a comparative rookie from the Eastern League, and the American League has named three new men, Bill Guthrie, who was up before, in 1922; Dick Campbell from the Southern Association, and Dan Barry, a Boston sports scribe whose only experience has been handling college games over a long period.

Brown gets the go-by, as usual. Why?

A lot of fans would like to know.

BROWNIE is a strong booster of Guthrie, who returns to the American League to take the place of Clarence Rowland, former manager, who officiated last year and has not been reappointed.

Bill Guthrie.

Guthrie has all of the requisites of a real umpire, according to Bull, who believes a ready tongue probably was the reason for his being dropped several years ago.

They tell a classic story about Guthrie's short stay in the American League before. He chased a couple of the Yankees' stars one day and Miller Huggins, the pocket edition manager of the club, came rushing out from the dugout to protest. Bill called back the retiring athletes and said:

"Here, take the bat boy with you."

And, in dismissing Eddie Collins from the premises one day, he told the onetime great second baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics he wasn't so very essential to the success of his team that he'd be missed.

That's what is known as burning 'em up.

COMES to hand a letter from Bill Busch, Millvale's entrant in C. C. Pyle's Marathon race, who is training with the hundreds of others who will vie for the big prizes in the cross-country grind from Los Angeles to New York beginning early next month.

Bill Busch.

Bill, who made the long trek alone last year, just to prove to himself that he could stand the gaff, is nothing if not confident. He doesn't think much of the field he will have to beat. He writes as follows from Los Angeles:

"Just a few lines to let you know I am out here at last and having a great time. I am staying at the Elks' fine home. It is like summer. I was out to see Pyle and his other runners and it certainly looks like the old men's home out there. Tell my dad to come out. He can beat this bunch himself."

1:20 in the morning. A record crowd saw the match.

Lewis won the first fall after two hours and 16 seconds of caveman grappling. It was negotiated with a combination front headlock and arm hold.

Stecher came back to win the second fall in one minute and 18 seconds. This was accomplished with a double wrist-lock.

Stecher and Lewis, regarded as the leaders among heavyweight westlers of the world, completely neglected the holds for which each is famous in gaining the falls. In fact, not once during the contest did Stecher succeed in getting his famed scissors hold on Lewis.

ers who have not yet sent in their entries are urged to get into communication with Secretary A. J. Rauscher at once. Rauscher may be reached by addressing him at 123 South Twenty-third street, South Side, or by phoning Hemlock 8098. The tourney is to be held the week of March 12 on the Forward alleys.

Last week's competition failed to bring about a change in leaders in the American Three-Cushion League, and Willie Hoppe continues to lead Hall by a margin of one-half game. Jake Schaefer and Welker Cochran have thrown the league players into something of a furor by challenging any three-cushion artist to a match provided the diamonds are removed. Jake and Welker contend that any three-cushion star would be lost when unable to use the diamond system.

SHOTS and PASSES

FOR the first time in several years Pittsburgh may have an amateur basketball league next winter that will include the leading community organizations in this vicinity.

The North Side Community House, Hill Top Y. M. C. A. and the Youn Men's Hebrew Association, all more or less dissatisfied with the manner in which amateur basketball is conducted in this section, have announced their willingness to join a circuit next year composed entirely of teams that are support.d by bona fide amateur organizations.

None of the three teams mentioned above are affiliated with leagues this winter, yet all are rated with the best quintets operating hereabouts. Heretofore these teams have played independent schedules. An effort is being made to get Mifflin M. E. Church of Wilkinsburg, Heinz House and kindred organizations to join the proposed circuit.

If the circuit is organized it will include no independent amateur team, but will be composed of quintets supported by community institutions.

A league of this kind would have a tendency to eliminate the tedious task of arranging a schedule of games, which has become a difficult assignment in view of the dearth of first-class amateur opponents.

CHAMPIONS of two leagues will clash at Columbus Temple next Saturday night when the J. J. Mieles, P. & O. titleholders, opposes the Duquesne Lafayettes, uncrowned champions of the Allegheny County League.

This contest brings together two of the best teams in their respective classes, and while the Lafayettes will take the floor favorites to win, the Mieles will prove no setup for the Duquesne passers. Both teams boast large followings and indications are that a capacity crowd will attend the game.

The game with the Lafayettes will mark the fourth of the week for the Mieles. Last night they met the McKees Rocks Business Men, tomorrow they oppose the McKeesport Junkers, while Thursday finds them in action against the Sumer Somermans at Columbus Temple. All games, with the exception of the Lafayette contest, are P. & O. League affairs.

DRIBBLES

Eddie and Harry Barmen have contributed much to bring the Y. M. H. A. five to the semi-finals of the A. A. U. tourney. Should the Y. team defeat the Lancers it will meet Community House for the title. Community House is assured of a place in the finals, having drawn a bye.

Owing to a change in the Allegheny County League schedule, the Broadway Club will meet the Rauhs at Columbus Temple tonight and the Duquesne Lafayettes at Duquesne tomorrow night.

Art McGuirk, Broadway Club center, is requested to call Boots Klinzing tonight between 6 and 7 o'clock.

SAYS TEN HERBS WAS WONDERFUL

Pittsburgh Salesman Claims It Alone Ended Indigestion and Constipation.

"After three years as a traveling salesman, and eating at irregular hours and nearly all kinds of places, my stomach and bowels were in a terrible condition," was the statement of Mr. H. W. Scott, 136 Second Avenue, Pittsburgh, to the

MR. H. W. SCOTT

Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs. "I tried medicines of every description, but kept getting worse, until I got a bottle of Ten Herbs, which helped me right from the start," Mr. Scott continued.

"Before taking your medicine, I surely was a distressed individual. My stomach gave me a terrible lot of trouble after eating. Gas formed, and sourness and an acid liquid kept rising in my throat, and it was all I could do to talk to anyone. I felt like there was a heavy load pulling down on me. Finally, I became badly constipated.

"While reading a paper, I noticed the statement of a local man, who claimed Ten Herbs had relieved him of stomach, liver and bowel disorders. I investigated his claim and found it to be true. Then I started using Ten Herbs, and after taking three bottles I was entirely well. I am free of indigestion, gas and belching. My bowels are regular and I feel like a new man. I rest well at night and am full of energy in the morning. I advise all who are suffering like I was to try Ten Herbs, as I believe it will give them the same wonderful results it did me."

Those in this section who have used Ten Herbs say it gives almost immediate results, and makes one feel better in every way. Its splendid natural ingredients benefit and invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and have a cleansing, soothing, correcting effect on the entire system.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

Carlson Rests Panther Five

By JESS CARVER.

BETHANY COLLEGE of West Virginia and the Dukes of Duquesne will renew an old court rivalry on the Bluff tonight, hooking up for the second time this season in a Conference contest, in which the locals will likely be installed hot favorites. A favorite is about the only thing that can get hot in this kind of weather.

In years past, the Green Bisons have always caused the Dukes trouble, particularly here in Pittsburgh. They don't seem to go so well down at Wellsburg or at Bethany, but when they play here, there is usually the dickens to pay.

Last year, after winning at Wellsburg, the Dukes played Bethany here and barely nosed 'em out. This year, the locals knocked Bethany off at Wellsburg by a capable margin. Since then, Westminster has walloped both the Dukes and Bethany, the latter twice, and the Dukes and Bisons have both taken poor Waynesburg over the road for a couple of victories. The pair of 'em are fighting for the runner-up position in the Conference, neither having much of a chance to overtake Westminster. The lineup:

Geneva and Allegheny meet in the only other tri-state district game of importance tonight, clashing at Meadville in a return match.

THE powers-that-be in football at Tech will gather today to lay plans for the opening of the spring training activities and discuss prospects for next fall, following the arrival from Chicago this morning of Head Coach Walter P. (Wally) Steffen, who is scheduled to spend two days in Pittsburgh.

Steffen is due to reach Pittsburgh at 8:45 and immediately will go into conference with Graduate Manager Clarence E. (Buddy) Overend, Assistant Coach William L. Marks and Freshman Coach Al Irwin.

PITT'S varsity basketeers will rest today prior to their engagement tomorrow, the last of three, with Tech in the Tartan's gym. Doc Carlson gave his outfit a workout yesterday to rid them of the kinks and sore spots that developed after the grueling battle with Notre Dame Saturday. Pitt has little to worry over tomorrow. Tech hasn't improved any since the last Pitt game, which they lost by a 50-28 score. The Panthers have added victories over Penn State, Allegheny and Notre Dame to their list since last sinking Carnegie.

I HAVE a post card from Robert Methuselah Thorn of Grove City, who wishes me to announce that the Grove City-St. Francis game has been moved up from Friday night to Thursday.

Home-made Remedy Stops Cough Quickly

Finest cough medicine you ever used. Family supply easily made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it, and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

best of the 1903 players named above, the Pirates had such pitchers as Jesse Tannehill and Jack Chesbro, both of whom were in the American League in 1903; such catchers as Chief Zimmer and Jack O'Connor and such extra infielders as Jimmy Burke at his best and Wid Conroy.

THE superiority of the 1902 aggregation is shown by the fact that it won 103 games and lost only 36 for a percentage of .741, while the team of 1903 won only 91 and lost 49 for a mark of .650.

One Pittsburgh team has since passed the century mark in conquests, that being the club of 1909, which won 110 games, but it must not be overlooked that the 1902 outfit had only 139 games out of which to win its 103 victories, while the 1909 crew, which won 110 games, played a total of 152.

RETURNING to the 1902 team, that string of six straight shutouts was the beginning of a winning streak that opened the way to the city's third consecutive pennant.

The Bucs had been in third place from May 1, when they began on June 2 to pile up their six successive shutout triumphs, but after winning the six shutouts they continued their streak until they had won 15 games in a row.

That put them in first place and they stuck there until the finish.

FROM Kearny, N. J., comes news of a movement with which Pittsburgh baseball fans will be in sincere sympathy and accord. A memorial is to be erected to John (Dots) Miller, a big league ball player of exceptional ability and spirit in his day, and for five years a star on the Pittsburgh club.

Senator Mansfield.

Miller, who died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., in October, 1923, rests in a grave at Mount Arlington Cemetery in Kearny, and it is proposed to erect a monument to his memory in the public park of that city, of which Dots was a native. A fund is being raised among the fans of that district and the success of the movement is said to be already assured.

MILLER was one of the most popular players that ever wore a Pittsburgh uniform.

He was not quite ripe for fast company when the Pirate management picked him up in 1908, so he was sent to the McKeesport club of the O. and P. League.

Senator W. D. Mansfield, then head of the McKeesport club, made such a good job of developing Miller that when Dots came back to the Pirates in 1909 he quickly became a star.

Ed Abbaticchio got off to a bad start at second base that spring, and after the Latrobe man had played only four games at second base, Miller was sent in to take his place and remained there to the finish, playing in 150 consecutive games during the remainder of the season.

Jack continued to work for the Bucs, later being shifted to first base, until the end of the season of 1913, when he was traded to the St. Louis Nationals with Chief Wilson, Cozy Dolan, Rube Robinson and Arthur Butler for Ed Konetchy, Mike Mowrey and Bob Harmon.

BOXING NOTES

Motor Square Garden changed places on opposite sides of the ring at the end of the second bout by order of the commissioner.

Boxing bouts will be held in the Washington Gardens arena at Washington, Pa., beginning early in March, the club having just been licensed. I. E. Goodridge is the matchmaker. He would like to hear from the managers of boxers anxious to appear on his cards. They may address him at 414 South Main street, Washington, Pa., or call him on the telephone at Washington 1272-R.

Pete Zivic, who handled Jack Zivic against Nick Susnell last night, boxes Lou Moscowitz in a 10-round bout at the Olympic A. C., in New York Saturday night. Moscowitz has just scored a one-round knockout victory over Allentown Johnny Leonard.

Tug Phillips boxes Pete Petrolle, brother of Billy, in the 10-round windup at Erie Friday night.

Nick Susnell meets Harry Harris in an eight-round windup at Mingo Junction, O., next Monday night.

EUCHRE IS SUCCESS

A capacity crowd attended the euchre and dance of the Homewood Baseball Club at McDougall's, East Liberty, last night and close to $1,600 was raised for the club's fund for the coming season. The club plans a second amateur boxing show for early in April at which further funds will be realized. Mayor Charles H. Kline was among those who attended last night's affair.

when the advance guard arrived. Outfielder Pete Scott is the only absentee.

BUSH'S AIDS GOOD

Bush is well supplied with assistants with Ens, Stanage, Fraser and Devine on the grounds. Bill Hinchman will not reach camp until the arrival of the second squad. The former slugger will be in charge of the infielders and outfielders on the long jaunt to camp.

Chic, the fungo artist, played a big part in the opening workout as well as those that are to follow. Fraser is in a class by himself in the knack of running pitchers, and most managers now agree that running is just as important for the sharpshooters as throwing.

The antics over the outfield grass increase the wind of the hurlers, while it helps the arms and legs at the same time. A pitcher without good wind is apt to show the wear and tear of a battle before the seventh inning is reached, and many battles are lost through the weakening of a pitcher's arm after the stretch period.

Manager Bush will follow the one workout a day plan until the arrival of the second squad.

Davies Wins, Loses Decision

night, They fought so fast that they dazzled the spectators and seemingly blinded one of the judges and the referee, for, at the finish, with Davies having won eight of the 10 rounds on his continual forcing and straight-line boxing and hitting, the judges disagreed and the referee's vote gave the bout to Wolgast, who hails from Philadelphia.

They didn't do right by wee Willie when they short-changed him thus, and it was the second time the thing had happened. Davies whipped the Midget at Atlantic City the first time they boxed and the second time, at Philadelphia, last November, the judges disagreed and the referee found for Wolgast.

DAVIES AGGRESSOR

Wolgast, who scaled only 109½ pounds, is a good-looking kid, faster than Davies on his feet and a great little showman, who hops and dances and rallies in spurts and makes a great fuss playing the ropes and to the crowd and the judges, featuring the 10-second flash per round typical of so many Philadelphia boxers, but Davies stuck to his knitting all the way and appeared to be a winner in every round but the first and ninth, and in some of them he led by wide margins.

After the first round, which he won with the blistering speed of his maneuvering and the snappy use of a good left hand, Wolgast spent most of his time pedaling about the ring and countering, with Davies constantly digging in and scoring with solid blows to the head and body. In the ninth round, Wolgast began to try to make up lost ground and almost went into ring hysterics running and dancing and jumping and throwing punches at Davies. It was a spectacular effort and he won the honors, beating Davies to the mark throughout the protracted rally. He tried to do the same thing in the tenth and last round, but Davies was too steady for him and made him miss one rushing attack after another and then speared him with well-timed stingers.

There were no knockdowns in the fight, except that handed out in the decision. Davies weighed 111¾ pounds at 5 p. m.

Judge Bull Brown and Referee Red Robinson voted for Wolgast and Judge Jock Simeo for Davies.

KATKISH STOPS SUSNELL

Nick Susnell, popular welterweight of Rochester, Pa., ran into a bit of tough luck in his return bout with Jack Katkish of Lawrenceville, the scheduled eight-round semi-final, and was knocked out after 2 minutes 3 seconds of the fifth round, after having boxed his way to a snug lead in the third and fourth sessions. Katkish, made to look foolish as Susnell cleverly moved in and out of range and kept a fusillade of left jabs popping into his face and outslugged him at close quarters, opened the fifth round with a desperate drive and battered down Nick's defense and lured him into trading blows with him. He weakened Nick with an attack to the body and then shot a right high. It caught Nick on the Adam's apple and started him toward the floor and a left followed and struck Nick on the side of the head as he was going down. Susnell rebounded immediately from the floor, without a count, but reeled as he got up, and Katkish loaded up another sock and let him have it. This floored Nick for the count. He took it on his back, vainly trying to roll over and gasping for breath. He had to be assisted to his corner. When he was ready to leave the ring, some minutes later, he was cheered to the echo, for he is one of the most popular boxers to appear regularly in the local ring and was not disgraced in defeat last night. After the show was over he still was suffering from the blow on the Adam's apple. He said he did not remember getting up after the first knockdown. Nick weighed 145½ pounds, one pound less than his opponent.

TAYLOR BEATS SIMMONS

Jack Simmons, Negro of the Hill, 137½ pounds, seconded by Garfield Johnson, started off like a boxing streak against Slambang Harry Taylor of the North Side, 149 in the six-round second bout, but, after winning the first two rounds, succumbed to Taylor's relentless forcing and Taylor breezed in the victor. It was a good scrap.

Eddie Jiggers of Sharpsburg, 141½ pounds, was outclassed by Johnny Riley of Homestead, 141½ pounds, who was no great shucks himself, in the first bout, which was stopped in the sixth round. Jiggers had his left eye cut in the third round and was painted like an Indian from the blood most of the rest of the way. He tried to act smart, twice sticking out his tongue and once thumbing his nose at his opponent, and took a bad pasting in return. His seconds should have thrown in the towel before the end of the third round, but it remained for the referee to stop the bloody mess after 1 minute 21 seconds of the scheduled last session.

The crowd was only a fair-sized one. Red Robinson, Joe Keally and Eddie Kennedy divided the refereeing and A. C. Couch was the timer.

"It was but recently, when I started to act as master of ceremonies with my band at the Paramount Theatre, that I realized how vital perfect voice condition was to a performer. I have always been a consistent smoker and fortunately, Lucky Strikes were my favorite brand. I like their toasted flavor and, best of all, I can smoke as often as I like, without fear of irritating my voice, which is becoming a great asset in my work."

Paul Whiteman

Prominent Tobacco Buyer says:

"The Cream of the Tobacco Crop" goes into Lucky Strikes

"Discriminating smokers know the excellence of Lucky Strike Cigarettes by their distinctive taste, flavor and lack of bad after-effects. We buyers know why Lucky Strikes possess these superlative qualities; because we buy the 'Cream of the Crop' for their manufacture."

Giannini California's Most Talked of Financier.

By B. C. FORBES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.

THE most talked of man in California is A. P. Giannini, son of a poor but sturdy Italian Californian soil tiller, stepson when only 7 of another poor but ambitious father of the same race, and son of a particularly bright Italian mother.

Today his Bank of Italy, which he founded, and its allied financial institutions have more depositors and more capital than any other bank or trust company in America. Also more branches. Also they own more stock in scores of other banks than any other individual or firm or company in America has ever owned. Never has America seen such a boom in bank stock as has been seen and is still being seen in the Bank of Italy and the Bancitaly Corporation shares.

FOR months the daily gyrations in these stocks have been featured in California newspapers. On the New York curb market the Bancitaly shares have likewise attracted notice.

Thousands of Californians have made fortunes in the Giannini stocks.

The rise in them has been sensational in the extreme. Stock dividend after stock dividend has been swiftly followed by new high quotations. The market value has multiplied several hundred millions of dollars in a few months.

Every barber and bootblack and fruit stall owner and thousands of other persons of very modest means have stopped spending normally in order to buy Giannini shares. Merchants complain, especially in San Francisco, that this has materially affected business. Not only so, but millions of dollars of eastern money have been brought west to lend to margin-buyers because other California banks refuse to accept the Giannini stock as collateral. President James A. Bacigalupi of the Bank of Italy tells me that borrowers are paying anywhere from 11 to 15 per cent for such money, a practice which Giannini and he strongly condemn. Indeed, Giannini has repeatedly warned against buying more stock than can be paid for outright.

But still the speculative orgy has gone on, fanned constantly by announcements of new banks taken over and by reports of impending breath-taking expansion, such as the acquisiton of very large institutions in New York and plans for setting up powerful central organizations in the 12 federal reserve bank regions and a national network of smaller banks tributary thereto.

PEOPLE living outside of California can have no idea of what's what Giannini wise. His name rings daily throughout the state.

"Giannini has a bank in the gardens of the Vatican, and Mussolini is also behind him," you are gravely assured.

Humble Italians vow that Giannini is "the greatest man ever lived since Napoleon."

Bankers externally josh one another about him advising this one and the next one to "Get lessons from Giannini on how to run your bank."

A popular song his been burlesqued to apply to Giannini and his stocks. On the stage a Giannini wheeze is sure to make a hit.

THERE is another side to the dazzling picture.

One responsible banker after another has confided to me that he is gravely disturbed over the hectic situation. One very influential financier, not a banker, informs me that he has greatly lightened his security holdings because he fears the unprecedented boom will be followed by the customary sequel to wild boom, namely, a collapse. "Other bankers are just jealous because Giannini has passed them all by his superior foresight and ability," his admirers declare. "He is adapting to banking what great corporations are doing in industry and what chain stores are doing in merchandising. He is 10 years ahead of them all and they are sore," they add.

CERTAIN it is that no banker ever went ahead as Giannini has done. His actions have been Napoleonic. If he wants a bank, and he wants one about every morning, he goes after it and gets it. Critics tell you that he pays any old price—"Twice as much as I would pay," they add by way of criticism. Measured by the price of the stock and the amount of the Giannini assets and deposits, the good will value set up on the Giannini institutions by the scramblers for the shares is high, to express it mildly. "What do you think of Bank of Italy and Bancitaly Corporation stock? And what do you think of Giannini?" are the questions hurled at me hourly. I have always replied that I regard Giannini's own cautionary advice against buying the stocks on margin as eminently wise. Usually I have added a reminder that no tree ever quite reached heaven. As for Giannini personally, he calls for a whole separate column. Perhaps tomorrow.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 9 to 14 points on higher Liverpool cables, an advance in the Egyptian market attributed to unfavorable crop reports, and covering and trade or commission house buying.

May contracts sold up to 18.49 and October to 18.26, but the advance was checked at these figures by pre-holiday realizing and a continuation of March liquidation in anticipation of probable notices on Friday. March seemed relatively easy, as there was some widening of the differences between months, and this may have had some effect on sentiment. Demand tapered off somewhat and the market showed reactions of 5 or 6 points from the best by the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported continental buying and trade calling in Liverpool owing to an improved spot demand and a scarcity of contracts.

Subsequently there was further switching from March into later deliveries and scattered realizing, which was absorbed by covering or a little trade buying on scale-down orders. Prices worked off to 18.29c for May and 18.17c for October and the market at midday was easier, with prices back to about yesterday' closing quotations.

United States "Free" Gold Supply.

Economic experts of the Treasury Department at Washington estimate that the United States has approximately $1,250,000,000 so-called free gold that could, if necessary, be exported without causing deflation in this country. At the moment there are no indications of any trend in gold movement.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Wheat started steady to a shade higher on the Chicago board of trade today and showed firmness in the early trading. March and May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher and July ⅛ to ⅜c higher. The latter, however, slipped back to its parity of yesterday within the first hour. The wheat firmness reflected a continuation of yesterday's estimate of the news from Russia and this, coupled with weather conditions over the winter wheat belt, overcame the fact that Liverpool was slightly lower than due. The initial buying however, was scattered and offerings increased on each fractional advance. The first noticeable buying put May up to 1.34 where it halted as orders came out. Corn was easier in the absence of outside inquiries, local trades being in the majority at the start. The volume was moderate and offerings to arrive were not numerous. Prices ranged from ⅛c lower to unchanged.

Oats at the start were unaffected by corn, seeming rather to be inclined to follow wheat.

Provisions reflected the slow hog market, July and May lard starting 2½c lower with the September option unchanged.

MARKET TURNS UPWARD AFTER 3-DAY DROP

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—After three days of sharply declining prices, the stock market turned upward today as buying orders poured in for a wide variety of stocks. Express shares and a few other specialties developed weakness, but many of the standard rails and industrials moved up 1 to 3 points, with gains twice as large in some of the pool favorites. Trading started at a brisk pace, but had slowed down considerably by early afternoon. The rally was generally characterized as a correction of a temporarily over-sold position.

Call money opened unchanged at 4¼ per cent, but dropped to 4 by early afternoon. There was no change in the other monetary accommodations. Receipt of $5,000,000 in Russian Soviet gold attracted considerable interest.

The weekly steel trade reviews stated that the industry was holding its recent gains, and that prices remained steady. A downward revision of crude oil prices was reported from the Mid-Continent field, giving further evidence of continued over-production.

United States Steel common and General Motors received good support, but the gains were only nominal. The sharpest advances took place in the high priced industrials and pool specialties, International Business Machines, Dupont, A. M. Byers, Reynolds Tobacco B, Chesapeake and Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Standard Milling, General Railway Signal, Montgomery Ward and Vanadium being among the many issues to sell 3 or more points above yesterday's final quotations.

Weakness of the express shares was believed to represent the tradition "selling on the good news" following publication of reports that banking interests had acquired control, as part of a plan to have those properties taken over by the railroads.

STANDARD PLATE UP IN N. Y.

Prices were steady in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, and, while volume of dealings was on a restricted scale, there appeared to be a fair demand for some of the recent leaders just under current quotations.

Sales		High.	Low.	Last.
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Dixie Gas, which sold off a little in Monday's market, recovered its loss today and was handled at [illegible] to 87 in the first hour. Other fuels were quiet but bid prices were about the same as figures posted on the close last night.

Standard Sanitary was handled again at 103¼, the low point of the present movement. Recent disturbances on the New York exchange are thought to have caused the moderate selling noted in Standard the past few days. A few sales of United Engineering and Foundry were recorded at practically unchanged prices.

Standard Plate Glass issues enjoyed a further rise on the New York exchange but the market for the stocks was extremely dull here. The common moved up fractionally to a new high for current trading while the preferred jumped [illegible] points. Recent settlement of labor difficulties is thought to be the principal reason for the strength, but there are rumors in the Street that new interests are gathering up proxies, probably with a view to inaugurating changes at the next meeting.

George Washington Had Troubles of His Own

"WHAT with my own business, my present ward's, my mother's which is wholly in my hands, Colonel Colville's, Mrs. Savage's, Colonel Fairfax's and the little assistance I have undertaken to give in the management of my brother Augustine's concerns (for I have absolutely refused to qualify as an executor) I have been kept constantly engaged in writing letters, settling accounts and negotiating one piece of business or another, by which means I have really been deprived of every kind of enjoyment." A Vital Job Demands Experience

It is unfair, even to your closest friend, to burden him with the work and responsibility which will be his if you appoint him as executor and trustee of your will.

Executorship has become a highly specialized business, requiring not only a thorough knowledge of inheritance, income, state and federal tax laws, and estate procedure, but also a tested experience in investment and real estate matters.

One individual rarely possesses either the training or experience essential to competent estate management. This company, equipped through more than a half century of practice, has the experience requisite to efficient executorship. A problem which may never have been presented to the individual executor may have been solved many times by this company.

The security of your estate, if placed in our care, will not depend upon the judgment of any one individual, but upon the combined experience and ability of our complete staff of trained specialists, whose business it is to care for estates.

Consult them without obligation, and prepare a safe tomorrow for those you love.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Business Credit Available.

While the increase made in the rediscount rates by 10 of the 12 central banks of the Federal Reserve System may result in a slight stiffening of bank loan rates, it is improbable that any business men or firms will be prevented from obtaining all the money they need for regular operations at very reasonable rates, says the United Business Service of Boston. Since the period between early February and the middle of June is seasonably one of monetary ease, the rate can now be raised with less constricting effect on credit than would be the case after the middle of the year. There is, however, some psychological effect in a rate advance that acts as a suggestion to the banks that they adopt a more conservative attitude in credit extensions and renewals. In the present instance, the rate advance has been accompanied by an active selling movement of United States securities by the Federal Reserve banks. These are mostly bought by the member banks, which, in consequence, have much less money to loan either on securities or commercial paper. They will, however, favor commercial loans because they can be rediscounted.

Goodyear Net Increases.

Net profits of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company in 1927 amounted to $12,526,486, compared with $4,159,134 in the preceding year, according to the annual report made public by President P. W. Litchfield. The profits were credited to surplus after deducting $3,295,648 for depreciation of plants and equipment, taxes, interest, premium and discount, $3,500,000 reserve for commitments and contingencies and profits of subsidiary companies applicable to stock not held by the company. Total unit sales of Goodyear tires showed an increase of more than 15 per cent over 1926, while consolidated net sales of all products were $222,178,410, about 1½ per cent less than in the preceding year, reflecting the substantially lower prices which prevailed during the year.

Exchange Offer Accepted.

Reporting the practically unanimous acceptance of the Goodyear offer to exchange new first preferred stock for the old preferred shares, President Litchfield said this had resulted in an increase of current dividend income for preferred stockholders and, "though removal of the large accumulation of preferred stock dividends and reduction of other barriers, has largely cleared the way for dividends on common stock whenever the company's earnings, asset values and surplus will justify their declaration." The consolidated surplus at the close of the year amounted to $25,183,103 after paying dividends of $8,445,279, deducting charges incident to refinancing and extraordinary legal and other expense amounting to $3,604,195 and reserving $3,000,000 for loss on liquidation of subsidiary properties.

Timken Shows Gain.

Timken Roller Bearing Company reports for the year 1927 net income of $9,554,290 after charges and taxes, equal to $7.95 dollars a share on 1,200,622 shares, against $9,474,193 or $7.94 a share in 1926.

Jordan Motor Shipments.

Shipments of Jordan Motor Car Company during the current month will nearly double the average February, according to E. S. Jordan, president. The used car situation has improved substantially, Mr. Jordan says.

Cuyamel Fruit Profits Rise.

Cuyamel Fruit Company consolidated net income was $1,849,290 for the year 1927, after interest, federal taxes, etc., equal to $6.12 a share on the 300,000 capital shares, against $612,149 or $2.04 a share in 1926.

Hudson-Manhattan Railroad.

The Hudson-Manhattan Railroad reports for January:

Coast Line Net Dwindles.

Atlantic Coast Line Railroad for the year 1927 reports net income of $8,455,995, equal after preferred dividends to $11.95 a share on the 523,427 common shares, against $16,519,512 or $24.97 on 455,842 shares in 1926.

Lehigh Coal and Navigation.

Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company reports for year 1927 net income of $2,932,295 after charges and taxes, equal to $5.01 a share on 584,444 shares, compared with $4,177,446 or $7.14 a share in 1926.

Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Stockholders of Texas Gulf Sulphur Company have been informed by Walter H. Aldridge, president, that a very large tonnage of sulphur has been proven on Boling Dome by extensive core drilling, and it is estimated the life of the company, including reserves in all properties it now controls, at the present rate of more than a million tons annually, will be more than 40 years. Acquisition of the right to new property and its development to date, have been financed from earnings and the new plant probably would be financed in the same way, he stated.

Vulcan Detinning for 1927.

Vulcan Detinning Company earned $10.31 a share on the preferred and preferred A stocks in 1927, on which there is an accumulation of unpaid dividends, against $16.47 a share in 1926. Net profit declined to $143,569 from $239,511.

Week's Oil Output Down.

Daily average crude oil output for the week ended February 18 was 2,379,458 barrels, a decrease of 2,057 barrels from the preceding week, says the Oil and Gas Journal.

Carter Oil Adjusts Prices.

The Carter Oil Company, effective today, has advanced the higher grades of crude oil in Oklahoma and Kansas, and reduced the lower grades. Under the new schedule 32 gravity is posted at $1.16 a barrel, plus 3 cents for each additional gravity up to 52 and above, the top grade, which is at $1.76. Under the previous schedule 32 gravity was listed at $1.28, plus 2 cents differential for ensuing grades, and the maximum was $1.60 for 52 and above. Below 32 gravity each grade is reduced with a 5-cent differential ruling, making the minimum price 14 cents a barrel.

First Raise Since July, 1926.

Under the new schedule crude oil in Oklahoma and Kansas above 34 gravity is advanced 1 to 16 cents a barrel, while prices below 34 gravity are reduced 1 to 26 cents a barrel. This change has been made owing to the demand for higher gravity crude and sluggishness evidenced in the market for poorer qualities of oil. It is probable other companies will meet this schedule with the possibility of additional advances for higher gravity oil. This is the first advance in light oil by Carter since the Seminole field, Oklahoma, was brought in July, 1926. Carter Oil is a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The Prairie Oil and Gas Company met the new Carter schedule.

L. & N. Earnings Down.

Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company in preliminary statement for year ended December 31, 1927, shows net income of $16,726,241 after taxes and charges, equivalent to $14.29 a share earned on outstanding 1,170,000 shares of capital stock. This compares with $19,422,311 or $16.60 a share in 1926.

International Petroleum.

Crude production in Colombia of International Petroleum Company, subsidiary of Imperial Oil, Ltd., totaled 15,092,175 barrels in 1927, compared with 6,433,548 barrels in preceding year, increase of 8,658,627 barrels. Production was curtailed from full capacity due to excessive output in the United States, according to G. O. Stillman, president of Imperial Oil, Ltd. Total of 13,716,864 barrels was shipped to Canadian, American and foreign markets. Imperial Oil is controlled by Standard Oil of New Jersey.

THIS WAGGISH WORLD

by Roy K. Moulton

THE WAR THAT COULDN'T COME.

THE war that couldn't possibly happen struck America one April morning just as the pacifists were turning over for their beauty sleep, in the year of 1937. The war came from an entirely unexpected source, aroused by a trival diplomatic incident and without warning.

THE ports of New York and Boston were blockaded by a power that had never indulged in the expensive dream of disarmament. Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia were beleaguered. The sky was black with airplanes at all these points, released from the battleships and plane carriers. There was nothing but unconditional surrender.

The President at that time fumed and raged.

"Where is our army airplane?" he demanded of the Secretary of War.

"It is down in Mississippi spraying boll weevil for the cotton growers, Mr. President," replied the Secretary.

"Have we really an army airplane?" demanded the President.

"Oh, certainly," replied the Secretary. "I saw it myself two or three years ago. It was built years ago while Coolidge was President."

"Where is our navy airplane, if we have one?" demanded the President.

"It is on a map-making trip of the western coast," replied the Secretary of the Navy.

"Have these two planes report for duty at once. Where is the navy?"

"What there is left of it is taking a party of Senators on a junket to the Philippines," replied the Secretary of the Navy. "But she is an old boat. I have always said we ought to have a couple of new boats in our navy but was called 'a big navy man' and was roundly abused by the pacifists."

"Where are the pacifists now?"

"Under the bed, waiting for somebody else to defend them."

WHEN the dread news arrived the Senate was listening to a filibuster on the tariff caused by an attempt to raise the duty on celluloid collars from Czecho-Slovakia. One Senator, as a matter of privilege, introduced a resolution appropriating $5,000 for national defense but was howled down. "If we spend all this for national defense, we will not have enough left to enforce Prohibition," seemed to be the sentiment.

The President, meantime, was busy rallying the country, which responded nobly, as the country always does. "Within a year," he announced, "we will be ready to fight."

The capital was moved to Chicago. The President occupied his time with his Cabinet, doing what he could, with the rich Atlantic seaboard entirely in the hands of the enemy.

"Where is our army now?" he asked.

"The army is scattered," replied the Secretary of War. "The soldiers for several years have had to do outside work for a living and have been working on farms. We are getting them together and fitting them out with uniforms that were left over from the war of 1917 and as soon as we lay our hands on a few guns, we will have forty thousand men ready to defend the country."

WITH characteristic promptness, America got ready and inside of a year had driven the invaders into the sea, which was only about six months after all the loot had been shipped to Europe. Two years after the war was over and peace signed, the United States was prepared to whip the world single-handed. She had enough airplanes to darken the sky over an entire continent and enough battleships to pave the Caribbean Sea solid.

After the war America had an invincible army of millions of well-equipped fighting men. Never again would she be caught unprepared—never again—until the next time.

If the legislators had done their duty back in 1927, this calamity of ten years later could not have happened.

They said back in 1927 that it couldn't happen, anyhow, but it did.

Society Owes Its Young Protection Against Dope

Health and character are menaced by all narcotics. Their use for any purpose save under the ministration of a competent and reputable physician should be discouraged.

The greatest narcotic menace of today is the insidious drug, heroin. Its degenerative effects are swift and awful. Its illicit sale brings fabulous profit. The dregs of humanity are persistently tempting the young with it.

Studies made in many cities show that by far the larger number of users of heroin are under 20 years of age. This registers in the growing percentage of crimes committed by the young.

Dr. Carleton Simon, former deputy police commissioner of New York, estimates that about 58 ounces of heroin are lawfully prescribed in that city yearly, whereas the consumption is in the neighborhood of 76,000 ounces.

One ounce is enough to start 2,000 young persons on the way to ruin.

The other day a lad of 20 was executed for murder in a western prison. He had killed a man while caught robbing a store. His last statement was:

"I never committed a crime until I was 'hooked' at the age of 16. A peddler offered me a pinch of 'snow' saying it was 'great stuff' and would give me a 'kick.' When I held back, he said: 'Oh, be a sport; try anything once.' I did, but it was once too often."

The presence in our cities of thousands of such peddlers tempting American youth for dirty profit is the reason for this narcotic education week.

Knowledge of evil is not always a protection, but America owes its youth full and complete warning, as well as strenuous effort to stop so abnominable a traffic.

Miners Need $6,400 Week; Small Pledge Would Do It

Through reports of social workers to a committee representing several organizations engaged in furnishing relief to families of miners, it is disclosed that approximately $6,400 a week is needed to keep the work of mercy going in Allegheny county.

Means of taking care of this charge do not appear, since it is not known to what extent the business men's relief fund goes. Data obtained, made the subject of a special study, is to be considered at a meeting of the executive committee of the business men.

Yet how inadequately these poor people likely have been taken care of in the past is somewhat indicated in the statement that only $5,000 had been raised by the clergymen's relief committee since it began its activities a number of weeks ago. Less than an amount sufficient for one week! Of course, there have been other contributions in the way of food and clothing, generously given, but the call is one that is steady and constant.

Now that it is known how much is needed, the amount must be raised. If necessary we must make a voluntary taxation on ourselves. A quarter a week from 25,600 persons would give the amount needed. A dime a week from a greater number of persons would do it. The trouble is that it is too easy. Most persons will think that ten cents a week would be too small to amount to anything and so withhold contributions of that kind.

Career or Home?

Now that women have procured equal rights they should devote their carefullest consideration to the problem of how best to exercise them.

They have achieved equality, but that is only the beginning of the more important task of woman's readjustment to modern society, which her new rights and, therefore, new responsibilities inevitably involves.

One person, at least, is tremendously concerned that women should profit to the full extent by their recently acquired heritage.

She is Clara Shortridge Foltz, of Los Angeles, widely known lawyer and one of the ardent pioneers in the cause of equality of opportunity for her sex.

Mrs. Foltz wishes to impress upon the young women of the country that the exercise of their new rights does not mean the loss of their femininity or the repression of their inherited love of home and motherhood.

Young women these days are only too apt to forget in the enjoyment of their new independence that the home is still important, even the foundation of a successful civilization.

They may maintain their place in the life of the nation, in business or the professions without sacrificing any of the finer instincts which go to make up womanhood.

Mrs. Foltz urges that the woman confronted with the choice between a home and a career should choose the home.

Not that she can make either choice without some sacrifice, but in choosing a home she is generally truest to herself.

Her genius lies there.

Killing for Killing

That Won't Discourage Crime

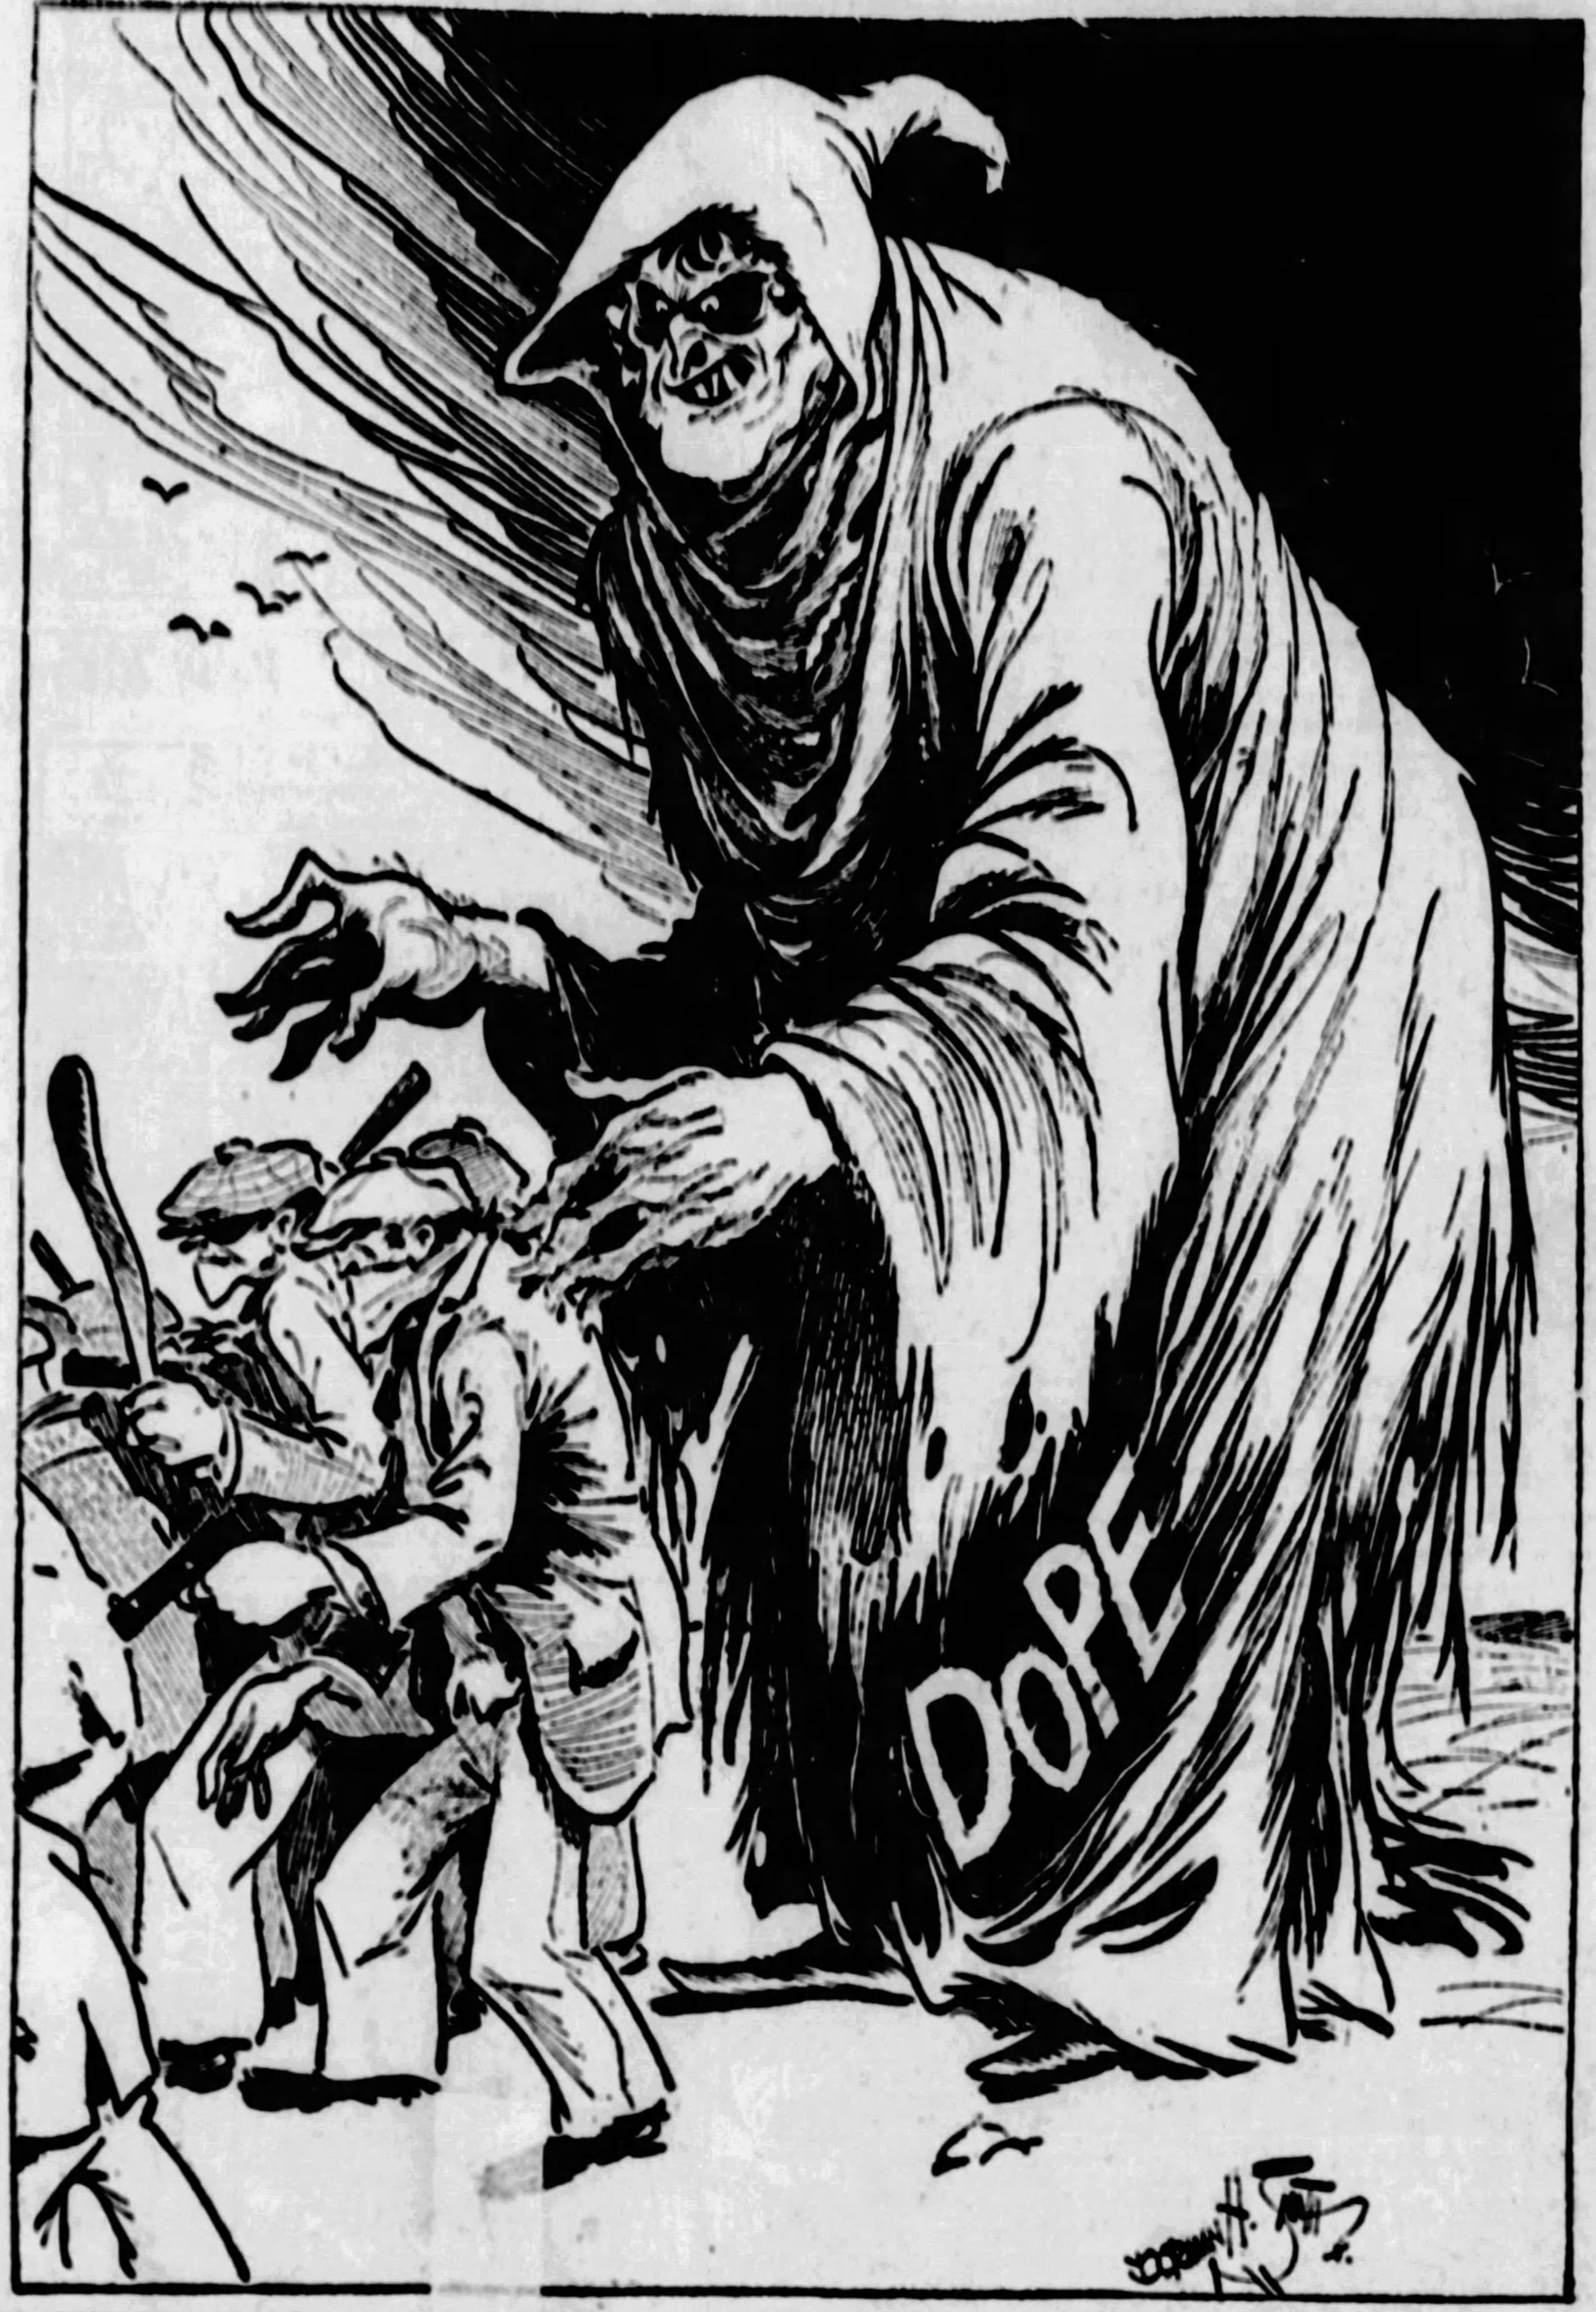
It is predicted that Michigan will restore the death penalty, long since abolished, because of the murder of a 5-year-old child.

Two days after he was caught, the child's murderer was sent to prison, to say there for life at hard labor.

In California, where they retain capital punishment, another little girl was kidnaped and murdered by a youth named Hickman. That individual is in prison, reading his "fan" mail and enjoying the excitement, with no belief that he will be hanged in his mind or in that of his attorneys.

If Michigan goes back to capital punishment, the number of murders will increase rather than diminish.

THE MASTER



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Story of Orion

FOR many the interest of the stars is greatly enhanced by the mythological stories connected with them. There is the outline of a whole literature, as old as human thought and imagination, pictured in the constellations. It goes far back of Homer and Hesiod and all the ancient poets and philosophers.

Even the professional astronomer, concentrated upon the scientific aspects of his subject, is never indifferent to the romance of the constellations. Practically he uses them nightly, for they mark out the geography of the heavens, the chart of the universe, without which his discoveries could not readily be located.

The constellation stories include the oldest conceptions of human fancy. It was a romantic time in the history of the mind when such conceptions found a canvas on which they could be ineradicably pictured in the rays of the living stars. Their freehold there was never successfully contested; the heavens were made over to them by the common, and never retracted, consent of mankind. One of the mysteries of their beginning is that the same personifications seem to have originated in far separated lands, among different peoples. They represent the fairy-book of the world's childhood, when the mind, yet untrained by science, was opening like a flower in the sunshine of the imagination.

Foremost in starry splendor among the constellations, and in the evenings of February royally conspicuous in the sky, appears Orion:

"Eastward beyond the region of the Bull
Stands great Orion; who so kens not him in cloudless night
Gleaming aloft shall cast his eyes in vain
To find a brighter sign in all the heavens."—Aratus.

The mythological hero represented by this huge, warlike figure among the stars has a story admitting many variations, though the main drift of it is sufficiently clear. Orion was the son of Neptune, the god of the sea. He was of great stature, and Homer speaks of him as "illustrious Orion, the tallest and most beautiful of men."

He became famous as a hunter, but, falling in love with Merope, daughter of Oenopion, King of Chios, he was so enraged by the King's delay in consenting to a marriage that he tried to carry off Merope. Her father then had Orion's eyes put out. But the blinded hero was told that the pure rays of the sun-god could restore his sight, and hearing the sound of the Cyclop's hammer echoing in the ground, he followed it to the forge of Vulcan at Lemnos.

Vulcan, out of pity, sent Kedalion to guide the blinded man on his way to the abode of the sun-god. Orion with his giant strength carried Kedalion on his shoulder across many lands until he met Apollo, who restored his sight.

Afterward Orion became a favorite hunter and a suitor of Apollo's sister, Diana, the chaste moon-goddess. Her brother was indignant that a half-mortal should aspire to his sister's hand, and resolved to destroy him. His scheme was as unworthy of his godhood as it would have been of his manhood, if he had had any. Seeing Orion wading in the sea one day, with only his head emerging like a floating object, Apollo challenged Diana, who was a matchless archer, to hit "that black thing" with one of her arrows. She innocently launched the shaft with unerring aim, and Orion was slain.

As his body was gently floated to the beach by the breakers the goddess demanded of her father, Jupiter, to exalt Orion to the stars and to place him forever in that shining vault with his hunter's belt, his club, his shield of lion's hide and his long, swordlike hunting knife. Behind, following him at headlong speed and carrying the brightest star of heaven, flaming in the wind, was placed his huge hunting dog, Sirius.

This is surely as good a story as modern professionals could invent; and then, just think of its age, emblazoned for thousands of years on the heavens themselves.

Unpopularity

HOW do you act when someone starts a story with which you are familiar, or gives information with which you are cognizant?

You act so bored that the narrator is embarrassed and uncomfortable.

You think by acting as if you possessed extensive knowledge you can impress your associates with your progressiveness.

Then you wonder why you are not more popular.

This should not puzzle you for long.

You are a poor sport, unwilling that another should shine, socially.

You want to be the one to whom others listen, isn't that so?

Even though you are well-read and active in many circles, is it often that you have something really new to offer?

In most crowds in which you find yourself there may be those to whom your stories are new—and so figures the other fellow.

If the persons with whom you associate are willing to listen kindly and generously to your old stories, why don't you practice this virtue also?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Little Loves

LITTLE loves and laughters,
How they light the days!
No one misses sunlight,
Treading laughter's ways.

No one lacks for dollars
If he own love's gold;
Love, who heeds not hunger,
Love, who fears no cold.

Little loves and laughters,
Sometimes they may seem
Like a wind-blown candle
With its fitful gleam.

But men find with passing
Years of ease or strife
Little loves and laughters
Mean the whole of life!

Tales that are Told

Worth It

A BARRISTER, who labored under the defects of having a high temper and of being deaf, was engaged in a case presided over by a younger man, of whom the older practitioner had a small opinion.

Presently there was a clash between the barrister and the judge. The judge ordered the other to sit down, and as the barrister, being deaf, did not hear him and went on talking, the judge fined him £10 for contempt of court.

The barrister leaned towards the clerk and cupped his hand behind his ear.

"What did he say?" he inquired.

"He fined you £10," explained the clerk.

"For what?"

"For contempt of court," said the clerk.

The barrister shot a poisonous look towards the Bench, and thrust a hand into his pocket.

"I'll pay it now," he said. "It's a just debt!"—London Tit-Bits.

Out of Tune

MISS MAPLE intended having her voice trained, but at practice one day came to the conclusion that the piano did not sound right. Whereupon she telephoned for a tuner, who came, and found the instrument in perfect order. He pottered about for a while however, pocketed the fee and departed.

A few days later his employer received another telephone message from Miss Maple. Her piano, she complained, had not been properly tuned. It was no better than before, and she was very disappointed.

After receiving a reprimand from his employer, the tuner made another trip and again tested every note, only to find, as previously, no fault with the instrument. This time he told Miss Maple so.

"Yes," she said, "it does sound all right, doesn't it, when you play on it; but as soon as I begin to sing it gets all out of tune!"

Turning the Tables

A CLASS of children were wrestling with a lesson in arithmetic, and the scholars found that fractions were too much for them.

The trouble started when little Doris declared she would rather have half a jam tart than two-thirds of it.

"How often have I tried to drive it into you," said the exasperated teacher, "that two-thirds of anything is more than a half? Now you all know," she went on, "that Doris prefers a small portion of tart to a large piece. Funny child, isn't she?"

Doris, having thus been held up as a model of stupidity, put up her hand.

"Well," asked the teacher, sharply.

"Please, miss," said Doris, in a small, clear, piping voice, "I don't like tart!"

Hardly a Man's Work

THE old ploughman had decided that his son should have a better position in life than himself and, seeing an advertisement for a youth required for a lawyer's office, he called upon the advertiser.

"My son is a clever lad," he began, "and has bin in an office for a month, but he wants more pay. What'll you give him?"

"That depends upon what he can do," was the answer. "For instance, can he draw up a mortgage deed or a conveyance?"

"Well," replied the parent, "I know nowt about mortgage, but as for drawing a conveyance, we keeps the owd mare for that."—London Answers.

Asked for It

A RESIDENT in a street which was undergoing repairs protested about a pile of broken paving outside his front gate.

"Can't you take this away?" he shouted to one of the men on the job—an Irishman.

"Where will I take it?" asked Paddy, with a grin.

Whereupon the man told him clearly and forcefully where he might take it.

"Hadn't I rather take it to Heaven?" was Paddy's retort. "It would be more out of your way there!"

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—As grand as many New York hotels are, they are not grand enough for many patrons. At their own expense they knock down walls to make two rooms into one, import decorators to fashion murals and furnish them according to individual tastes.

New bathrooms are installed, so are sun rooms, and sometimes pipe organs. Such apartments are usually manned by a quota of personal servants not attached to the hotel. Yet the tenants have all the service the hotel provides plus their own. It offers living on a scale not possible in apartment houses.

There are some who take an entire floor of a hotel wing with the space of from 15 to 20 rooms. And what pops the eyes of many of us from the forks of the creek is that these apartments are usually occupied only six months of the year. One bachelor had two rooms converted into a bath.

The floor is of sea green glass with water flowing under it and the walls and ceiling are paneled with mirrors. The plumbing fixtures are of sterling silver and the cost exceeded $50,000. The space rental alone is $10,000 a year.

In one of the hotels overlooking Central Park, a millionaire has the entire frontage of one floor and his rental is $72,000 a year. Hotels make no reductions in such instances because a family of say five occupying 17 rooms represents a loss to the dining room.

This splendor in hotel living is a gesture of prosperity springing up in the past five years. It marks the almost complete passing of the family mansion in the city proper. Those who have not gone to the de luxe apartment houses have gone to hotels.

Operative G 1 of my monocle department reports a steady increase of wearers. Among confirmed adherents are Otis Skinner, George Arliss, Lowell Sherman, Andrea de Segurola, Laurence Dorsey and a dozen others not so well known. The recent visit of Ferenc Molnar, the Hungarian playwright, added fuel to the monocle craze. Mr. Molnar is reputed to wear his while he sleeps. Quaint but silly.

There are, incidentally, many Americans seen abroad wearing monocles who fear somehow or other to wear them at home. It does require a courage beyond the average American.

* * *

It is not such great shakes to wear a monocle attached to a cord, but to wear one unattached is downright art, if art can be downright.

One finds the monocle in strange places. A steamer porter at Plymouth, England, wears one and to tip him is almost like tipping the duke.

New York editorial writers carry their editorial page dignity into private lives. They are rarely seen at "first nights" or other public gatherings. And only a few are known by name to readers. Most of them live in suburban homes like country gentlemen and once in awhile one will be seen at an art exhibition or a lecture on some learned topic. Quite a number were once reporters, but outgrew the slightly roystering manner of the guild. The editorial writer, if he comes to the office, arrives after other workers. He has leisure to make his product finished and he leaves first. Some of them express their whimsical side in writing those letters to the editor signed "Veritas" and "Pro Bono Bublico."

Every now and then a hole-in-the-wall magic shop breasts the Broadway entertainment tide with a window artist to compete with the theaters, movies and such. They struggle for a brief period and sink. But one cannot help admiring their optimism.

* * *

Two New Yorkers, according to the newspapers, have retired from "active work to engage in literary pursuits." What do they think writing is anyway — a Maypole dance?

Fat—No Mystery About It

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There used to be a line in a play that went, "Nobody loves a fat man."

At least nowadays no woman wants to be fat.

There are all sorts of explanations, theories and remedies for fatness.

There is just one cause of fat, however. People should remember that they never put anything on their abdomen or hips in the way of fat that does not come through their mouth in the way of food.

There is a good deal of highbrow theorizing about disease and glandular troubles.

It is nice to talk about these things and it is less humiliating than to admit that we eat too much.

But disease causes little overweight.

Neither is glandular trouble prevalent.

The real cause of fat is that we eat too much and live too much at ease.

Our ancestors were not troubled with obesity because they had to hustle around more.

They did not ride in automobiles. They walked. They hunted. They did house work.

If some of the ladies who complain of too much obese tissue would make a practice of taking the broom and sweeping the floor and getting down on their knees and mopping up the kitchen and doing the family wash, they would speedily recover their desire for slimness.

We don't take enough exercise and we eat too much.

The candy habit grows and grows.

No better cure for an enlarged abdomen can be found than bending over a washboard and no better cure for piano-shaped legs than plenty of walking.

If we would get down to the simple life and move about more and eat less our figures would show it.

Horses and dogs are healthy because they run around so much to find something to eat.

People are not healthy because they sit still and have somebody bring them something to eat.

Exercise for the sake of exercise is pretty hard to take, but exercise performed in the course of one's daily duties is not so hard.

One ought to arrange one's life as much as possible to wait on one's self. The necessary action of the body in attending to one's needs will have a great effect upon one's shape.

I met a man in Paris some years ago and when I asked him on behalf of a friend where a good valet could be secured he replied that he did not know about valets, as for some years he had been trying to see how many things he could get along without and not how many things he could get.

See how much you can do without and arrange your life as much as possible, so that you have to wait on yourself and you will not have much trouble with your figure.

Long Live the King

IN THE years that are now overgrown with myrtle and wild azaleas it was customary upon the death of a monarch for the bugler to blow a blast and the master of flunkeyism to cry aloud to the world and the realm:

"The king is dead; long live the king!"

That was both a farewell and a welcome; both a vesper and a matin and then the new majesty fell gracefully into the routine of snobbery and autocracy.

But the World War has just about cleaned out the king row and the circus or the museum will soon negotiate for the remnants.

A casual dip into the annals of kingdom will reveal the cause of the exit of kings. Just glimpse Louis XV, with his mistress, Madame DuBarry, his shame and his bacchanalia while the peasantry were 40 degrees below poverty.

But there are other and newer kings whom I would greet today with the well-worn slogan of long ago.

The root and original meaning of the word king is the man who can; or the man who is able. It is another of those nouns which have been polluted in the hands of man.

Our young international ambassador whose chariot is "The Spirit of St. Louis," is a king more worthy the title than the Grand Monarch of France. He is doing something in internationalism which was never done before in the history of the world. Long Live Lindbergh, the king!

The genius who burrowed under the Hudson, with an engineering feat without precedent, is a king. The mythical giant who threw the causeway down to bridge the waters between Ireland and Scotland did not excel this modern king of impossibilities. May he live long!

The spokesman who turns Neptune and gathers the waters of a mighty river in the hollow of his hand and then sprinkles them over a desert empire and makes it rejoice and blossome as the rose—his kingship is recognized by every sage bush and cactus plant and rattlesnake and sandstorm that have held sway in the desert for centuries.

The godlike man who lures into his laboratory a deadly army of 10,000,000 microbes and there battles like Hercules till they all lie dead at his feet and the world is delivered from a man-killer, who has taken toll of millions of lives annually—that godlike man is a king more regal than Cæsar Augustus.

Long live the king!
